Flag Back on Top in Alabama

By RAY JENKINS

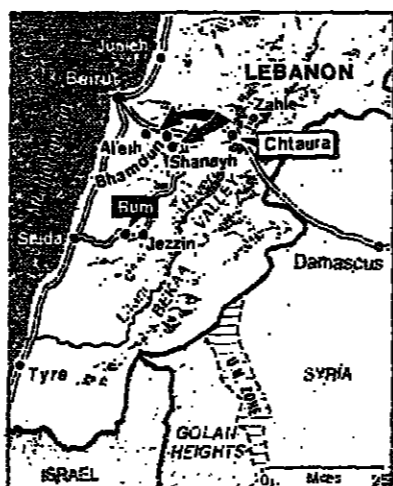

Special to The New York Times
MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 13—Gov. George C. Wallace has quietly made a symbolic gesture to end a lingering 15-year battle over the Civil War in Alabama, but his compromise has left Confederate sympathizers stridently angry. With no advance announcement, Mr. Wallace ordered yesterday that the United States flag be flown over the Alabama Capitol once again, replacing the Confederate battle flag at the top of the staff. The Confederate flag was placed in the No. 3 position on the staff under the state flag, leading the state archivist, Milo Howard, to say: "I think it's pretty shabby when you fly the flag of a defeated nation on the same pole below that of its conqueror. It's a demonstration of defeat on a pole." The Governor gave no reason for his action, but Mr. Howard said that Mr. Wallace was making a "serious attempt to make a gesture of friendliness to 25 or 30 percent of our population." The Confederate banner was given the top spot in 1961 by former Gov. John Patterson, who said he intended to keep it there only for a year or so during the observance of the centennial of the beginning of the Civil War. After Mr. Wallace became Governor in 1963, however, he chose to keep the Confederate flag atop the Capitol, saying that this was fitting because Montgomery was the first capital of the Confederacy. He relegated the American flag to a shorter flagpole that stands on the south side of the Capitol. The presence of the Confederate flag has long drawn sharp criticism from black groups in Alabama.

SYRIAN ARMY OPENS A 2D LEBANON DRIVE AGAINST GUERRILLAS

Strikes at Positions East of Beirut in an Apparent Campaign to Win Submission by P.L.O.

By HENRY TANNER

Special to The New York Times
BEIRUT, Lebanon, Oct. 13—The Syrian Army, having struck at Palestinian guerrillas south of here yesterday, opened a new drive today against Palestinian units 12 miles east of Beirut. The action forced the cancellation of cease-fire talks between Syrian, Palestinian and Lebanese military representatives that had been scheduled to resume this morning in Syrian-held territory a few miles east of the new battle zone. The drive was seen as part of a Syrian campaign of alternately using military and political pressures to force the leadership of the Palestinian Liberation Organization to accept a settlement in Lebanon on Syrian terms. The military action today was against Palestinian units holding the towns of Aleih and Bhandun in a mountain area directly overlooking Beirut. In an offensive two weeks ago, the Syrians had driven the Palestinians out of a mountain salient east and northeast of those two towns. The attack today was carried out by Syrian forces supported by artillery and heavy fire from dug-in tanks. By nightfall, according to a Palestinian spokesman, the Syrians had gained some ground near the village of Shanayh south of Bhandun. But he said the attackers had been held off outside Bhandun and Aleih.

Syrians Inactive in South
Meanwhile, the Syrian forces that began a drive in southern Lebanon yesterday with the apparent aim of cutting off the Palestinian-held port city of Saïda did not advance today, although it was clear that they could have done so.

Moving out yesterday from Jezzin, 20 miles east of Saïda, they advanced five miles westward and took the town of Rum. In doing so, they crossed the last steep foothills that presented the Palestinians with natural defense lines east of Saïda.

The Syrian troops remained in the Rum area today, apparently content for the moment at least to be within striking distance of Saïda, the only remaining major supply port for the Palestinian main force and Lebanese leftists in the predominantly Moslem western part of Beirut. The Syrian objective, it seems, is to hem in the Palestinians militarily to the

CBS Ousts Taylor as Its President; Paley to Yield Chief Executive Post

William S. Paley John D. Backe Arthur R. Taylor

By LES BROWN

In an action that took Wall Street by surprise and stunned high-ranking executives within the company, CBS Inc. yesterday dismissed Arthur R. Taylor as president and appointed John D. Backe, 44-year-old head of the CBS publishing division, to succeed him. At the same time, William S. Paley, chairman of CBS and its head since 1928, announced to the board of directors that he would relinquish his responsibilities as chief executive at the annual shareholders' meeting in April. Mr. Paley, who was 73 in September, said he planned to continue as chairman indefinitely. The joint announcements, considered "bombshells" on Broadcast Row along the Avenue of the Americas as well as in the financial district, ironically occurred at a meeting in which CBS reported its 24th consecutive record quarter for revenues and earnings and its prospects for sales exceeding $2 billion this year. Mr. Paley's decision to withdraw from the day-to-day supervision of the company he built was attributed by intimates to his advancing age and the illness of his wife. Indeed, the prospect of his having to pass on the leadership of CBS to another was said by sources close to the chairman to have precipitated his dismissal of Mr. Taylor yesterday morning, shortly before the board meeting. Several persons close to Mr. Paley and Mr. Taylor noted that their personal relationship was not very good and that it had been marked by frequent clashes. "CBS is the house that Paley built,"

Cargo Jet Crashes On a Bolivian City; 100 Reported Dead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SANTA CRUZ, Bolivia, Oct. 13—A Miami-bound cargo jet plunged into one of the main downtown avenues of this Bolivian city today, cutting a path of destruction for more than 300 yards. One wing smashed a school. The death toll was estimated at 100.

A Red Cross official said that 60 bodies had been found, and the toll was expected to mount as rescue workers dug through the debris. The estimate of 100 dead was made by the United States Embassy in La Paz, the Bolivian capital, 350 miles to the northwest.

Witnesses said the jet, a Boeing 707 belonging to a Miami company, faltered shortly after takeoff from El Trompillo Airport on the city's outskirts and may have been trying to make an emergency landing. They said about 60 children were attending classes when the wing smashed through part of a primary school.

The aircraft, which carried a crew of three Americans, then crashed through a filling station where moments before dozens of people had been waiting in

FORD BRANDS CARTER SPEND-TAX ADVOCATE

Uses Aggressive Tactics in Tour of Four Metropolitan Counties

By FRANK LYNN

Special to The New York Times
UNION, N.J., Oct. 13 — Campaigning through four metropolitan counties that he must win to capture New York State and New Jersey, President Ford attacked Jimmy Carter today as a Democrat who would raise taxes and "spend, spend and spend." Tailoring his speeches to the interests of his generally friendly suburban audiences, the President repeatedly said he had stemmed Democratic spending programs by his vetoes and portrayed his opponent as the executor of a Democratic platform that would cost at least $100 billion to implement.

"Do you want your taxes raised so that you can pay for the $100 billion program of Jimmy Carter?" he asked the crowd spread out on the lawn of the Rockland County Courthouse in New City. He got

Court Says State Must Allow Bronx Hospital to Open

By DENA KLEIMAN

A Supreme Court Justice in Manhattan ordered the New York State Health Department yesterday to permit the opening of North Central Bronx Hospital, taking the first judicial step in a two-month controversy that has virtually paralyzed the municipal institution. In a 19-page decision chastising the department for attempt to "dictate" financial arrangements for the hospital, Justice Edward J. Greenfield ruled that Dr. Robert P. Whalen had overstepped his authority as the state's Health Commissioner and that he must approve plans for the hospital set by the city's Health and Hospitals Corporation. The ruling, in effect, allows the corporation to go ahead with its plan to have Montefiore Hospital provide the doctors and other professional staff for the $100-million, 420-bed hospital, which replaced Fordham Hospital. A spokesman for the Health Department said officials there had not received the decision and that there would be no comment until they had had an opportunity to read it. Dr. John L. S. Holloman, president of the Health and Hospitals Corporation, expressed "joy and vindication" over the decision. He said that a copy of the proposed affiliation contract with Montefiore Hospital would be presented to Justice Greenfield today and that the facility would be opened — if certified — by next Monday. The hospital was staffed and ready for service on Aug. 17, but so far has operated only limited outpatient clinics. It became caught in the midst of a controversy involving the fears of the low-income patients it was intended to serve as well as the larger issue of what the Health and Hospitals Corporation's future should be at a time of fiscal stress. Technically, the absence of a slip of paper from the State Health Department,

The Chinese Shake-Up

Events Leading to Elevation of Hua Kuo-feng And Arrests of Leftists Are Falling Into Place

By FOX BUTTERFIELD
Special to The New York Times

HONG KONG, Oct. 13—After a week of tumultuous political conflict in China, diplomatic analysts in Hong Kong believe that they can begin to perceive the outlines of what happened, but they still lack hard evidence on many points. Like readers of a cunningly devised detective story, the analysts are trying to piece together half a dozen known facts, a bizarre tale of intrigue unexpectedly furnished by Chinese in Peking, and a series of Aesopian hints in the Chinese press.

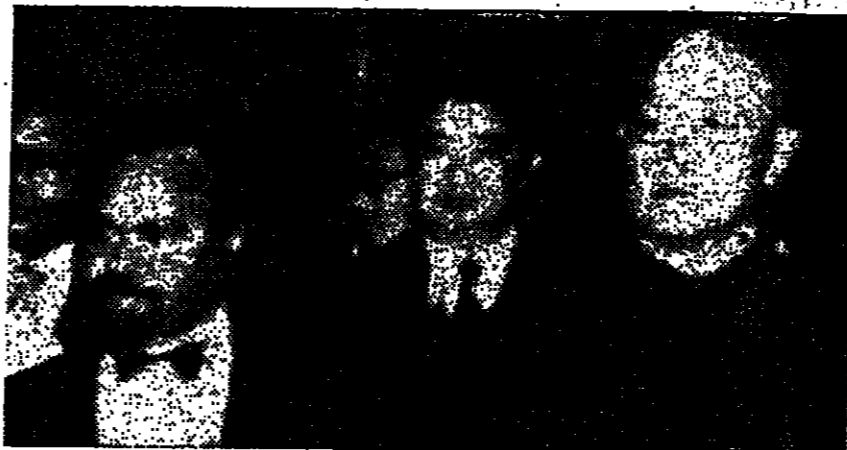

First the facts. Hua Kuo-feng, virtually unknown only a year ago, has been confirmed as Chairman of the Chinese Communist Party, succeeding Mao Tse-tung. Mr. Hua will also be chairman of the Military Commission and Prime Minister, an unprecedented combination of posts in the party, army and government that no Chinese leader, including Mao, ever held before. No Chinese official has denied reports that the four leftist party leaders, including Mao's widow, Chiang Ching, have

To analysts who have long followed China, one of the most surprising developments was that individual Chinese citizens in Peking were coming forward to give diplomats the latest information. It was an ordinary Chinese who gave the British Embassy the first hint of the reported arrests of the leftist leaders.

Politburo Meeting Reported

Another report, based on intelligence sources, was that last Thursday an enlarged session of the Politburo, the key decision-making body of the party, was held in Peking. It chose Mr. Hua as party chairman, but the decision could not be publicly announced because, under party practice, it had to be formally ratified by the broader Central Committee.

At the Thursday meeting, there was evidently conflict over the role of Mao's ideas and who would interpret them. The issue of the forged quotation may have been raised at that time. In any case, on Saturday it was announced that the Politburo "headed" by Mr. Hua would take charge of publishing Mao's writings. According to one version of the meeting circulating in Taiwan, the leftists objected to making Mr. Hua chairman and instead proposed Miss Chiang. They were said to have cited a last will of Mao calling for handing over power to her. The intelligence sources say that on Friday the Politburo issued a directive to party units throughout the country reporting Mr. Hua's elevation. It was this directive, No. 15, that touched off the premature appearance of wall posters on Saturday in Peking and Shanghai acclaiming Mr. Hua's appointment.

Li Hsien-nien, Deputy Prime Minister for economic affairs, escorted Michael Somare, Papua New Guinea's Prime Minister, to state banquet in Peking, Tuesday night. Mr. Li is a leading member of the so-called "moderates."

Central Committee Said to Meet
The Central Committee meeting to ratify these decisions is now taking place in Peking, the sources add, after several hundred party leaders were summoned to the capital over the weekend. Exactly when the leftists were arrested is not clear. But it was apparently after the Thursday meeting of the Politburo. Beyond this hazy outline of what may have happened, the analysts are now being bombarded with other rumors, most of which are uncheckable. Some correspondents reported from Peking that 30 to 40 other leftists had been arrested, including Wang Tung-hsing, an alternate Politburo member who headed Mao's personal bodyguard, and officials of the Peking radio and of the principal party newspaper, Jenmin Jih Pao.

Another story held that Li Hsien-nien, the Deputy Prime Minister for economic affairs, long a close associate of Chou En-lai, had already been named Prime Minister. There was no way to confirm such stories, but with so many rumors turning out to be true, no analyst was sure whether he could deny them either.

Reference to a 1935 Dispute
A broadcast by the Peking radio today recalled a critical meeting of the Politburo in 1935, during the epochal Long March, when Mao and another party leader, Chang Kuo-tao, clashed over proper strategy. According to the broadcast, Mr. Chang "practiced factionalism and splitism, and stubbornly pushed his opportunist line," but "thanks to the wise leadership of Chairman Mao, Chang's criminal plot was smashed."

The reference to Mr. Chang, who defected from the Communists in 1938, and to the conference, held at Maoerkai in Szechwan Province, was taken as an oblique confirmation that "splitists" had tried to disrupt another Politburo meeting. An editorial last Sunday in Peking's papers warned that "anybody who tampers with Chairman Mao's directives" is "bound to fail." That, too, could be an indirect confirmation of the plot.

Photos of 4 Leftists Withdrawn in Peking
PEKING, Oct. 13 (Reuters)—Hsinhua, the official Chinese press agency, today appeared to support reports that Mao Tse-tung's widow, Chiang Ching, and three other radical members of the Communist Party's Politburo had been purged.

Foreign correspondents who tried to buy official photographs of the four from the agency were told that none was available and that the only pictures on sale were of the new party chairman, Hua Kuo-feng. In the past photographs of purged leaders have quickly been withdrawn.

So far the Chinese have made no attempt to deny that the four had been detained and accused of plotting a coup. As for foreign press reports that about 30 more had been arrested, an official spokesman today declined comment.

Swede Is for South Africa Sanctions

By KATHLEEN TELTSCH
Special to The New York Times

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 13—Sweden accused South Africa today of "brutal oppression" of its black population and proposed a ban on future investments in South Africa and Namibia, or South-West Africa, which it controls despite United Nations resolutions.

Foreign Minister Karin Soder, who was named to her new ministerial post last week, declared in the General Assembly that Sweden and many other states regarded the situation in southern Africa as a threat to peace.

"Acceptable results cannot be attained through negotiations, the Security Council should therefore impose sanctions to eliminate the threat," she declared. As a first step, she urged a mandatory arms embargo, but she also proposed other measures, including the ban on new investments.

Estimates of Investments
According to United Nations estimates, foreign investments in South Africa total $10 billion and represent holdings mainly by British, West German and United States interests.

The latest report by the United Nations Council for Namibia reported that new mining concessions had been issued to a number of Western companies from the United States, Canada, France and Britain and that South Africa was continuing to try and attract new foreign investment for exploitation of Namibia's resources of diamonds, copper, lead and uranium.

The Swedish proposal for punitive measures against South Africa was made in the General Assembly as the Security Council held another inconclusive session on Namibia.

The South-West African People's Organization, which is recognized by the United Nations as the representative of the Namibian people, has been pressing its third world supporters to propose a mandatory arms embargo against South Africa to compel the Government to give up Namibia and accept elections under United Nations auspices.

Asian Warns Black Leaders on Geneva Talks

HENRY KAMM
Special to The New York Times
Rhodesia, Oct. 13—Prime Minister Ian Smith today warned the black leaders invited to the Geneva conference that many of them were ready to cooperate with an interim government. He said that the provisions of the agreement negotiated last month with the late Henry A. Kissinger would be bypassed at the Geneva talks, which are to begin Oct. 15. "It is the best thing we could do to pension them out to grass," Mr. Smith said. "I hope for success."

...ability of replacement of the invited African leaders at the conference, he said. "Certainly in Rhodesia I believe this is the situation." But Mr. Smith said that he was not "planning schemes" for the eventuality of failure and was "positive enough in my thinking to believe that we are going to succeed." Looking ahead beyond the formation of an interim government, the Prime Minister said that he expected no immediate end to the guerrilla warfare that is taking an increasing toll of lives on both sides. He said that nationalist politicians including Mr. Mugabe, who is thought to have the closest links to the guerrillas, were regarded with "contempt" by the fighters, whom he consistently called "terrorists."

...dous power and influence that they yield would be used to bring about a cessation of terrorism." Mr. Smith said that if "terrorism" continued despite his Government's readiness to negotiate for majority rule within two years, the United States and the West in general were pledged to help Rhodesia defend itself. He said that the nature of this "obligation" on the part of the "free world" had not been made specific. He reiterated that the provision of the Kissinger agreement specifying that whites would hold the defense and law and order ministries in the interim government was not negotiable. Black leaders have declared that this is not acceptable. Questioned about his own political future, the Prime Minister made clear for the first time that he intended to play a leading role at least during the life of the projected interim government. He said that he would contribute to the best of his ability to the drafting of a new constitution. Asked whether this meant that he would seek a place as one of the two white members of the four-member council of state, which is to supervise the drafting, he replied with a smile, "There's a chance that I might be there."

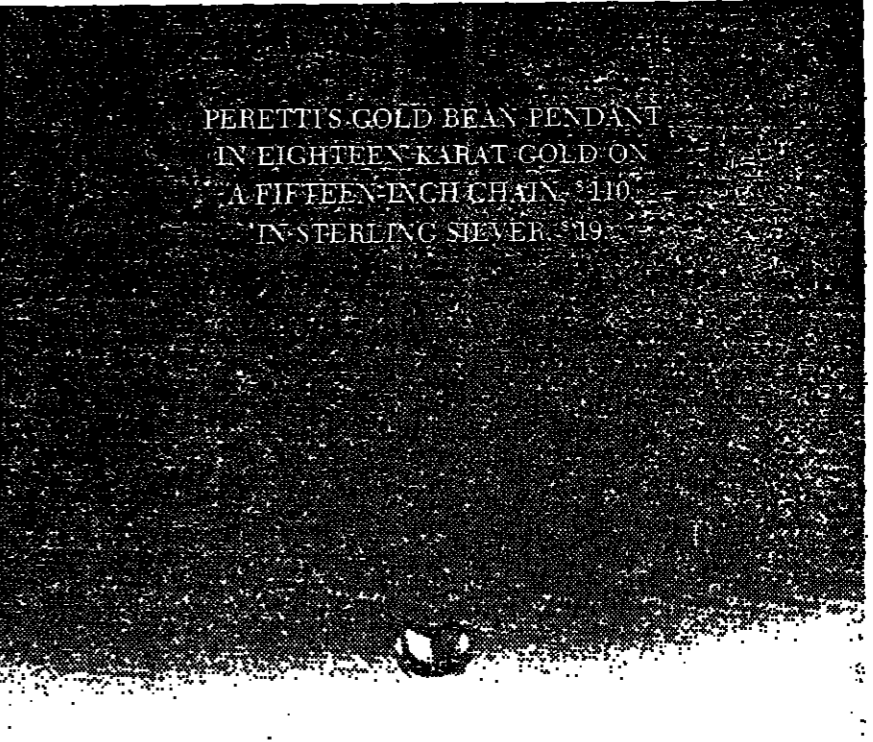

Transkei Sets Terms to Free Detained Actors

By JOHN F. BURNS
Special to The New York Times
JOHANNESBURG South Africa, Oct. 13—An official in the Transkei said today that two award-winning black actors, Winston Ntshona and John Kani, would be released from detention when they had "satisfactorily" answered questions relating to a performance six days ago. The Minister of Justice, Chief George Matanzima, said that the two had put on a "vulgar, abusive and highly inflammatory" performance of the play "Sizwe Banzi Is Dead." The actors' appearance in the Broadway version of the play, with another, "The Island," won them Tony awards last year. Mr. Matanzima, brother of Chief Kaiser Matanzima, who is to become Prime Minister of the Transkei when the territory becomes independent of South Africa on Oct. 26, said that the arrests had followed "strong objections and protests" from Transkei citizens who had attended the performance. According to others involved in the play, it ran before packed houses for two nights in Umtata, the Transkei capital, before moving to Butterworth, 60 miles away, where the arrests occurred. Members of the Transkei security police were said to have attended the Umtata performances carrying tape recorders.

Minister Says 2 Must Answer Questions on 'Sizwe Banzi Is Dead'

...ies made the arrests to win favor with the South African authorities have been firmly rebutted by officials in Umtata and Pretoria. The play has been strongly condemned by South African officials, and some performances in black townships have been banned since the outbreak of anti-apartheid protests in black townships four months ago. Chief Matanzima said in a statement: "I abhor any play that has the effect of inflaming feelings of one race against another. I further submit that it is highly irresponsible for any person to come and tell the people of the Transkei that independence will bring bloodshed in its wake."

Ford Is Urged to Intervene
Donald Grody, executive secretary of Actors Equity Association, has sent a telegram to President Ford asking him to intervene in the arrest of the two actors in South Africa. Mr. Grody declared that the reported arrests of the men "belies the statement of that country's Government to deal in a more reasonable way with their apartheid policy." A demonstration by members of the New York theater community protesting the arrests is scheduled for today at noon outside the South African Consulate at 425 Park Avenue, near 56th Street.

Ford Move on New Arms to Israel Is Termed Political

By BERNARD GWERTZMAN
Special to The New York Times
WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 — President Ford's decision to lift the ban on some advanced military equipment for Israel apparently caught middle-level State Department and Defense Department officials by surprise. This reinforced the view in both agencies that the decision had been timed primarily for political purposes. Nevertheless, the White House and State Department continued to deny that Presidential campaign politics had played a part in the decision. Robert L. Funseth, the State Department spokesman, again cited Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's comment on Monday that the decision "was handled as a routine decision in an on-going relationship."

...night-fighting electronic equipment and a bomb originally developed for the Vietnam War that can cause extensive fire and concussion damage. The bomb, listed formally as a cluster bomb, contains a type of weapon known as fuel-air explosives, and is effective against large groups of enemy forces. It kills by causing wide incendiary damage and by also creating a temporary vacuum that can suffocate the enemy. No Threat to Power Balance Officials acknowledged that President Ford can authorize the sale of arms and that enough staff work had been done to give him an idea of what was involved in the decision which also called for expediting some equipment already approved but delayed for one reason or the other. Although some officials seemed disgruntled at the timing of the decision, in advance of final staff work being completed, there was no evidence that either the Pentagon or the State Department would have recommended against selling either the bombs or the night-fighting equipment. Cluster bombs, which were supplied to the South Vietnamese, can be used against tank formations as well as massed troops, although the original mission was to detonate land mines over a large area and to clear helicopter landing areas. The night-fighting electronic equipment, primarily vision devices for tanks, helicopters and troops known as forward-looking infrared (FLIR), had previously not been available for shipment to other countries because it was in short supply in the United States. The weapons are refinements on current Israeli military equipment but are not viewed within either the Pentagon or the State Department by high officials as threatening to upset the balance of power in the Middle East. Israel already is regarded by the Central Intelligence Agency as being able to win a new Middle East war involving Egypt, Syria and Jordan, and the drop in Soviet arms shipments to the area has only increased Israel's edge. The request for the approval of the arms to Israel had been pending for more than a year, according to Israeli officials, but the decision was taken after Ambassador Simcha Diniz raised the matter with Mr. Kissinger two weeks ago.

253 ARE KILLED IN ZAIRE BY MYSTERIOUS AILMENT

BRUSSELS, Oct. 13 (UPI)—The death toll from a mysterious fever sweeping northern Zaire in central Africa reached 253 today, but doctors reported no new cases in the last six days and hope the epidemic is under control. The Belgian Foreign Ministry said the new death figure was reported by the doctor in charge of a Belgian medical mission in the stricken area centered on the Congo River town of Bumba. The mysterious disease causes high fever and loss of blood and other body fluids through intense vomiting and diarrhea. An outbreak of fever with symptoms similar to that of the Zaire epidemic has been reported from the southern Sudan, 600 miles from the trouble center in Zaire. More than 100 victims have died in the Sudan, but it is not yet known if the entire Zaire are related. GENEVA, Oct. 13 Health Organization special laboratory in identify the virus of and virologists hope for new blood sample point where political and logistical support from other Arab Governments can no longer help them defy the Syrian wishes.

SYRIAN ARMY OPENS NEW LEBANON DRIVE

The Palestinian leaders had hoped to obtain such help at a conference of Arab heads of state scheduled to open in Cairo Monday.

But the Damascus radio, which is Government controlled, announced today that the Syrian representative at that meeting would be Foreign Minister Abdel Hafid Khaddam. With President Hafez el-Assad apparently not going to Cairo, several other Arab heads of state are also considered likely to stay away.

The cease-fire talks by Syrian, Palestinian and Lebanese military representatives were to have resumed this morning at Chtaura, but Palestinian and Arab League delegates going there from west Beirut would have had to cross Aleh and Bhamdun under Syrian shelling and then go through Syrian lines. An American television crew going to Chtaura for the expected meeting was pinned down in the shelling near Bhamdun for more than an hour in late morning.

The talks were to have been held at the request of Dr. Hassan Sabry el-Kholy, the Arab League mediator. After the last session on Monday, Dr. Kholy announced that the negotiators had agreed on a wide range of practical details concerning a general cease-fire in Lebanon and a subsequent withdrawal of rival armed forces.

Mr. Kholy's method of seeking agreement on technical details and leaving broad political questions for later discussion was understood to have displeased the Syrian negotiators.

The Syrian representatives reportedly stuck to their basic demand that the Palestinians withdraw their military forces within six days from all the positions they occupied since the start of the Lebanese war 18 months ago, and that they recognize Syria in the role of an enforcer of law and order in Lebanon.

When the Palestinians resisted these demands the Syrian Army moved again, forcing the cancellation of the talks.

Syria Has Clear Advantage

Syria's military superiority was clearly visible in the mountains near Aleh today. Heavy artillery shells and rockets burst on roads and buildings and on the terraced orchards. There were many small fires and many new craters.

In the villa that served as a Palestinian command post on the road west of Aleh, a young Palestinian officer named Azmi woke up from a short nap in midday as rockets struck a slope 200 yards away. "Greetings from Brother Assad" the officer commented.

He was surrounded by a dozen soldiers in their teens, none of them armed with anything bigger than an assault rifle. But on a hill behind his command post Palestinians fired rockets toward the heights above Bhamdun.

The officer said the Syrians had two battalions of tanks and two battalions of multiple rocket launchers on the other side of Bhamdun. He said also that they had brought in reinforcements over the last two days.

"We fight here because we have no other place to fight," he said, speaking through an interpreter.

Another Palestinian said: "We are trading ground for time."

The commander, called shortly by his men, had been scheduled to join the Palestinian delegation at the Chtaura talks this morning.

"When the shelling started at 9:30, I knew the meeting was off," he said.

In downtown Beirut early today, Lebanese Christian militiamen made an attempt to break through fortified lines behind the commercial center, but were contained after an initial gain, according to Lebanese Moslem military sources. It was the first such attempt in months.

Firing and shelling was heavier through the night and this morning than it had been in many weeks. The only crossing point between Christian east Beirut and Moslem west was closed by sniper fire from both sides, as it has been for the last week.

Arafat Appeals for Help

BEIRUT, Oct. 13 (AP)—A guerrilla spokesman said today that Yasir Arafat, chief of the Palestine Liberation Organization, had phoned Arabs and asked them to put pressure on the Syrians to stop their attack.

Those he called included President Anwar el-Sadat of Egypt, Prince Fahd of Saudi Arabia, Saddam Hussein, second in command in Iraq; Col. Muammar el-Qaddafi of Libya and President Houari Boumediene of Algeria.

The spokesman said Mr. Arafat had also sent a message with the same request to the Soviet Communist leader, Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Italy Drops Andreotti Inquiry

ROME, Oct. 13 (Reuters)—The Italian parliamentary commission investigating the Lockheed bribery scandal today decided to take no further action about documents allegedly linking Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti to the case. Commission members voted by 19 to 1 to halt their inquiries into the allegations, which first appeared in the left-wing news magazine L'Espresso.

Restrictions Proposed On Killing of Dolphins

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (UPI)—The National Marine Fisheries Service proposed today regulations that would make it illegal for tuna fishermen to kill certain types of dolphins, either accidentally or intentionally.

According to a spokesman for the service, the regulations were proposed because nearly 134,000 dolphins were inadvertently killed last year by this country's tuna fishermen.

Dolphins are frequently found swimming with a school of tuna and are, on occasion, caught in fishermen's nets where they either choke to death or drown.

The proposed regulations, if approved, would take effect next year. Violations of the regulations could result in the loss of a fishing license. Six species of marine animals would be covered by the regulations—four species of dolphin and two species of whale.

THAI CALLS ELECTION AT LEAST 4 YEARS OFF

Prime Minister-Designate Says It
May Be a Decade Before Full
Democratic Rule Is Restored

By DAVID A. ANDELMAN
Special to The New York Times

BANGKOK, Thailand, Oct. 13—The Prime Minister-designate said tonight that it would be at least four years before democratic elections were held in Thailand and as much as a decade before full democratic rule might be restored.

For days officials of the military junta that seized power in a coup last Wednesday had been predicting a quick return to at least a semblance of normalcy.

The disclosure by Thanin Kraivichien, came today as the junta placed a curfew of 10 P.M. to 4:30 A.M. in Bangkok amid widespread reports of potential unrest by left-wing students on the one hand and senior military leaders on the other. Because of the rumors of potential action by leftists, the Government ordered the closing of all primary and secondary schools, which had opened Monday. Universities remain closed.

In a nationwide broadcast that ended 15 minutes before the start of the curfew tonight, Prime Minister-designate Thanin said that what was needed for Thailand was a series of "new steps, long-run and carefully programmed, a Thai-style democracy."

Gradual Increase in Democracy

For the present, the Prime Minister said, Thailand would be governed by a legislative assembly "appointed from all professions and regions of the country," with the junta, which calls itself the Administrative Reform Committee, acting as an advisory body.

Until the appointment of this legislature, however, the junta will continue to act as one and will choose the deputy prime minister, defense minister, and deputy minister of defense. It will have the "right to object" to the Prime Minister's appointment of the other ministers, although it is considered unlikely that the right will be frequently invoked because their views virtually coincide.

No elections would be held until the start of the second four-year phase, Mr. Thanin said, and even then the elective body would be subordinate to an appointed senate. In later four-year phases—taking the country through 16 years—the powers of the elective body would be increased until finally full democracy would be restored, he said.

"Throughout these phases we must emphasize long-run education and training in democracy for the people," Mr. Thanin said. His address was a thoroughly researched and carefully worded presentation that drew praise from many quarters—like many of the decisions he has rendered in his years as a supreme court justice.

It came, nevertheless, as a surprise. Only this afternoon, at the first news conference granted by the junta, Gen. Kriangsak Chamanand refused to speculate on the timetable for a return to democratic rule. And earlier this week, a Thai newspaper, Dao Siam, was banned because it carried a front-page banner headline predicting a six-month to four-year wait for democratic elections.

A Day of Wild Rumors

The announcement of both the curfew and the sudden exile to Japan of Gen. Vithoon Yasawas, deputy chief of staff of the army, came after a day of wild rumors. The one that seemed to cause the greatest concern said that left-wing students, enraged by the police action last Wednesday at Thammasat University that left more than 40 dead, hundreds wounded and 3,000 jailed, planned to kidnap scores of young students.

As the rumor spread through Bangkok, parents rushed to schools to get their children. The national radio interrupted broadcasts this afternoon to repeat the rumor, deny it and plead for calm.

Thailand's internal security operations command and some Western intelligence agencies had reportedly been receiving word that leftists planned terrorist actions tonight in Bangkok.

Tomorrow is the third anniversary of the revolution of October 1973 in which students overthrew the dictatorship of Field Marshal Thanom Kittikachorn and established a democracy. It was Marshal Thanom's return from exile last month that led to the student demonstrations that gave the military a reason for stepping in last Wednesday.

Instructions to Editors

Following this afternoon's news conference, reporters were given sealed envelopes for their editors that instructed them not to publish news of General Vithoon's exile or about any actions that leftists might take. Foreign correspondents were told that the ban applied only to the local press.

News of the curfew spread quickly. As soundtrucks moved through the streets, shops began to close shortly after nightfall. In the major tourist hotels, notices went up warning guests to stay inside and advising them that planes of the international airlines would not be landing in the country.

Huge traffic jams developed on roads leading out of the city as Bangkok residents headed home earlier than usual, preparing to settle in for the first extended curfew in years.

Israel Reports 5 Who Landed In Speedboat Were Guerrillas

Special to The New York Times

TEL AVIV, Oct. 13—Five Palestinians who landed a speedboat on a beach here in daylight on Sept. 25 were officially identified today as terrorists and members of Al Fatah guerrilla organization. The speedboat in which they approached the beach was said by military sources to have been launched from a Turkish freighter that was sailing from Lebanon to Egypt.

Two of the prisoners were sailors who were to have dropped three agents guerrillas at El Arish in Sinai and then to have taken the speedboat to Egypt.

The mission of the agents was to organize terrorist cells and sabotage operations in the occupied Gaza Strip.

The Israelis have reported the arrest of about 150 suspected members of terrorist organizations in the Gaza Strip since the landing on the beach nearly three weeks ago. Israel has set up a commission to investigate how the speedboat passed undetected through shore defenses.

Reports Readiness Deficiencies and 'a Garrison Mentality' Among NATO's Forces

JOHN W. FINNEY
Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—Gen. Alexander Haig Jr., Supreme Allied Commander in Europe, said today there were readiness deficiencies within the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, which he described as "a garrison mentality among the troops."

General Haig said, "ex-tremes toward a 'diminution of warning time' of an attack by the Warsaw Pact are before the annual meeting of the Association of General Haig said that the NATO command must improve the readiness of its forces, and he cautioned against any hasty change in strategic doctrine.

The Haig speech was an obliquely phrased response to critics who argue that the NATO forces are unprepared for a blitzkrieg and that NATO should shift its "strategic emphasis to preparing for a short, intense war in Europe."

This theme has been expounded recently by Senator Sam Nunn, Democrat of Georgia, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, and by Lieut. Gen. James F. Hollingsworth, a former corps commander in South Korea, in a still secret report to the Army staff.

In a recent speech, for example, Senator Nunn, who will soon leave on another inspection trip to the NATO command, said that current NATO planning assumptions, which project 23 days of warning time followed by a conflict of one to six months' duration, "appear to be increasingly unrealistic."

He suggested that the NATO forces should be prepared "for an intense war of two or three weeks preceded by only a few days' warning time, while retaining sufficient hedges to deal with a war of extended duration."

The thrust of the Haig speech was that the current deficiencies in countering a short, intense war did not dictate a change in NATO's basic strategy or assumptions.

The NATO command, he said, has undertaken a broad, three-pronged program to increase the readiness of the forces. "We are urgently seeking to break the grip of the long-standing complacency that has built up among the forces during a period of prolonged peace in Europe," he said. In addition, he added, steps are being taken to overcome the "disparities" in doctrine, equipment and tactical dispositions that have grown up between the NATO forces, and advanced plans are being laid for rapid reinforcement of the allied forces in time of war.

Contending that an "effective" strategy "requires a full range of military capabilities," the general cautioned against adopting "in haste doctrinal or postural prescriptions which we might subsequently regret at length." He also said "we must be careful in our efforts to make much-needed improvements in our conventional posture to seek the achievable and not the perfect—lest we breed despair at the magnitude of the task rather than determination to see it through."

General Haig said the Atlantic alliance was "at something of a watershed."

"On this side of the Atlantic, the end of our long preoccupation with Southeast Asia has left us with a novel sense of the limit of American power," he said.

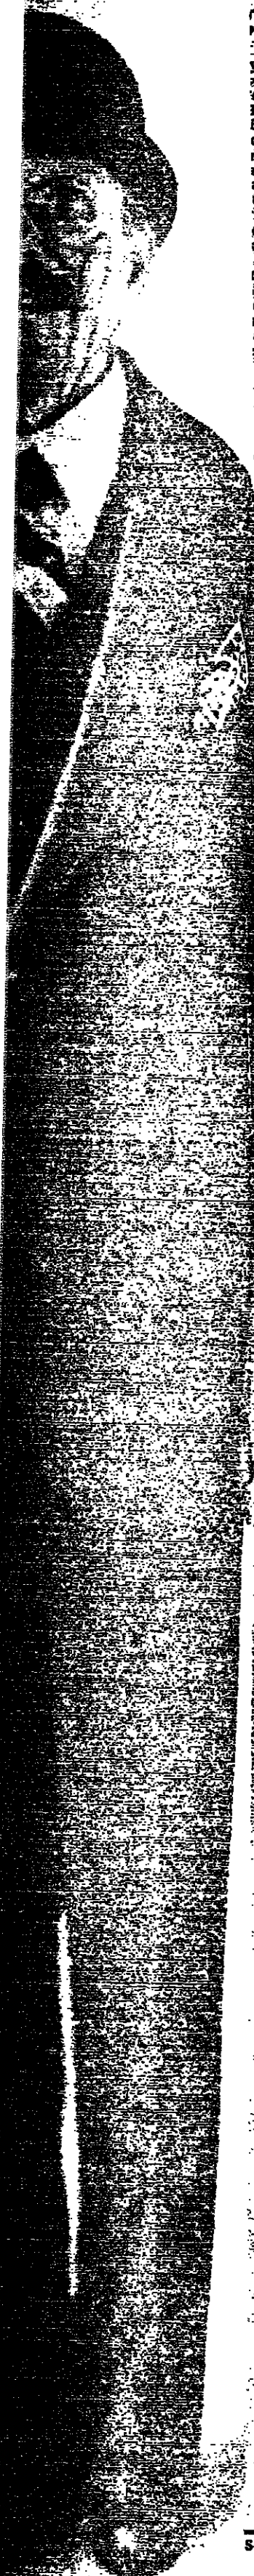

"On the other side of the Atlantic, tremendous socio-economic changes likewise suggest the utter necessity for concerted Atlantic community action. And for both us and our allies, this sense of interdependence is becoming reinforced by a growing awareness of the relentless growth in sheer Soviet military power."

Australian Sailor Is Acquitted Of Rape in Unusual Court-Martial

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (AP)—An Australian sailor was found not guilty today of a charge of rape in an unusual court-martial conducted in the Washington Navy Yard by the sailor's Australian peers.

Able Seaman Kevin J. Clarke, 19 years old, was acquitted of the alleged rape of a Baltimore woman, 19, on a barge in Baltimore Harbor following a party on July 10 honoring the Tall Ships.

The trial was authorized by the Friendly Foreign Forces Act of 1944, which permits an American prosecutor to turn a case over to a tribunal from the serviceman's homeland. The victim, described by her father as idealistic, assented to the unusual trial.

Records Show Hughes Borrowed $39.5 Million Shortly Before Death

By WALLACE TURNER
Special to The New York Times

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13—About three months before he died, Howard R. Hughes borrowed $39.5 million from three Houston banks, Texas probate court records showed.

As with many other disclosures about the business practices of the reclusive industrialist, the papers showing the loans raised more questions than they answered.

They were filed in Probate Court in Harris County, Tex., by the Texas Commerce Bank, owed $38,250,000; First City National Bank, owed $6,250,000; and Bank of the Southwest, owed $5 million.

With interest, the total claims amounted to $41,440,402.19. The banks acted under Texas probate rules that require the filing of secured claims within six months of naming of estate administrators.

Mr. Hughes's closest surviving relative, Mrs. Annette Gano Lummis, his aunt, and her son, William Rice Lummis, are co-administrators of the Hughes estate under appointment of Probate Judge Pat Gregory of Houston. The California and Nevada authorities also have claimed a voice in probate of the estate.

Probate court officials said Mrs. Lummis and her son had indicated in their handling of the claims filed by the banks that they would approve payment. Payment would be made when approved by Judge Gregory.

Knowledgeable sources have said that when Mr. Hughes died, his wealth included some $200 million in a cash-note-bond portfolio. This already has been tapped to pay for some $25 to $30 million in renovation and expansion being undertaken at the Desert Inn Casino and Hotel in Las Vegas.

Sometime next year when appraisals are negotiated to agreement with the Internal Revenue Service, the Hughes estate must begin annual payments on inheritance taxes, including interests, that will amount to about 75 percent of the net appraised value. The payments are to extend throughout 10 years.

The barest amount possible of the paper work behind the loans was filed in the record. But what was there showed a strange business practice.

Last Dec. 31, at a time when Mr. Hughes was living in Acapulco, Mexico, the Texas Commerce bank made five loans. The first was for $1.5 million; the second for $5 million. They were both to Mr. Hughes personally and were secured by a promissory note to Mr. Hughes from the Hughes Tool Company for $6.5 million, dated Dec. 31, 1970.

That was the name on that date of Mr. Hughes's personal holding company. But he sold the name when he sold the company, which manufactured bits for oil drilling, to the public in 1972. The holding company now is called Summa Corporation and has assumed the obligation of the promissory notes involved.

Also on Dec. 31, Mr. Hughes borrowed $15 million from Texas Commerce Bank, giving as security a $15 million note from Hughes Tool dated Dec. 31, 1966.

$5 Million Loan Secured by Stock

Texas Commerce bank also made a fourth loan, which was unsecured, of $3 million, and a fifth for $3,750,000, which was secured with stock of Sands Inc., the corporate name of the hotel in Las Vegas that Mr. Hughes owned in his own name.

On Jan. 9, First City National of Houston loaned $6,250,000 and Bank of the Southwest loaned $5 million, also secured by the stock of the Sands hotel.

The file of documents also included a power of attorney granted by Mr. Hughes to Raymond M. Holliday on Dec. 29, 1971, at which time Mr. Holliday still was the chief officer of Hughes Tool, which Mr. Hughes still owned.

IES AND U.S. CLASH N FOOD STAMP THEFT

Office Accuses Some Areas Not Cooperating—New York Aide Notes Lack of Manpower

By ERNEST HOLSENDOLPH
Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—Thousands of food stamps are being diverted from the public into an illicit market, and local officials around the country are refusing to help the Postal Service do anything about it, according to the chief postal inspector. At least 10,000 authorization cards are lost or stolen in New York City alone, Neil Benson the chief inspector, told Postmaster General Benjamin F. Ballar in a memorandum last week. He charged that the city would not help by providing a list of the stolen cards.

Mr. Benson said that a study of 21 States and some cities had shown that local jurisdictions "would not furnish inspection service with mail loss reports."

Among those cited were Atlanta, Cincinnati, Los Angeles, Philadelphia and Illinois and Massachusetts.

Lack of Manpower Cited

Mr. Benson said that the food stamp disbursing officer of New York City conceded that he "did not have the manpower of financial resources to report mail losses."

The memorandum was dated Oct. 7, days after a ring of 12 persons was urged in Manhattan with taking part in a $2 million food stamp fraud.

A copy was obtained by The New York Times, and postal officials here refused comment on it except to confirm its authenticity.

The Federal Government shares the cost of food stamps with the recipients. But local governments, on a matching basis, share with the Agriculture Department the administrative costs of the program. These clearly would increase if the Federal Government tried to mount a surveillance campaign.

Although advised of the problem in Atlanta, the memorandum says, the department has not done anything about the problem. Agriculture officials blamed the Postal Service when asked who was responsible for the security of the food stamp system.

A spokesman for the Department's Office of Investigations said that "any investigation of food stamps must be initiated by the Food and Nutrition Service." The agency said that such an investigation would be in the hands of the food stamp auditors. The Office of Audit referred inquiries to the Office of Investigation.

Whole Police Force Seen Needed

John Elber, spokesman for the Food Stamp office of the New York City Department of Social Services, said that would need a whole separate police department to deal with missing or stolen stamps.

Food stamp authorization cards are issued twice a month in New York to about 100 families for use at authorized stores.

Elber said that they were sent in plain, unidentifiable envelopes that "if held up to the light clearly say 'City of New York Food Stamps.'" The stores deposit stamps in their bank accounts, and the Government pays the banks the face value of the stamps.

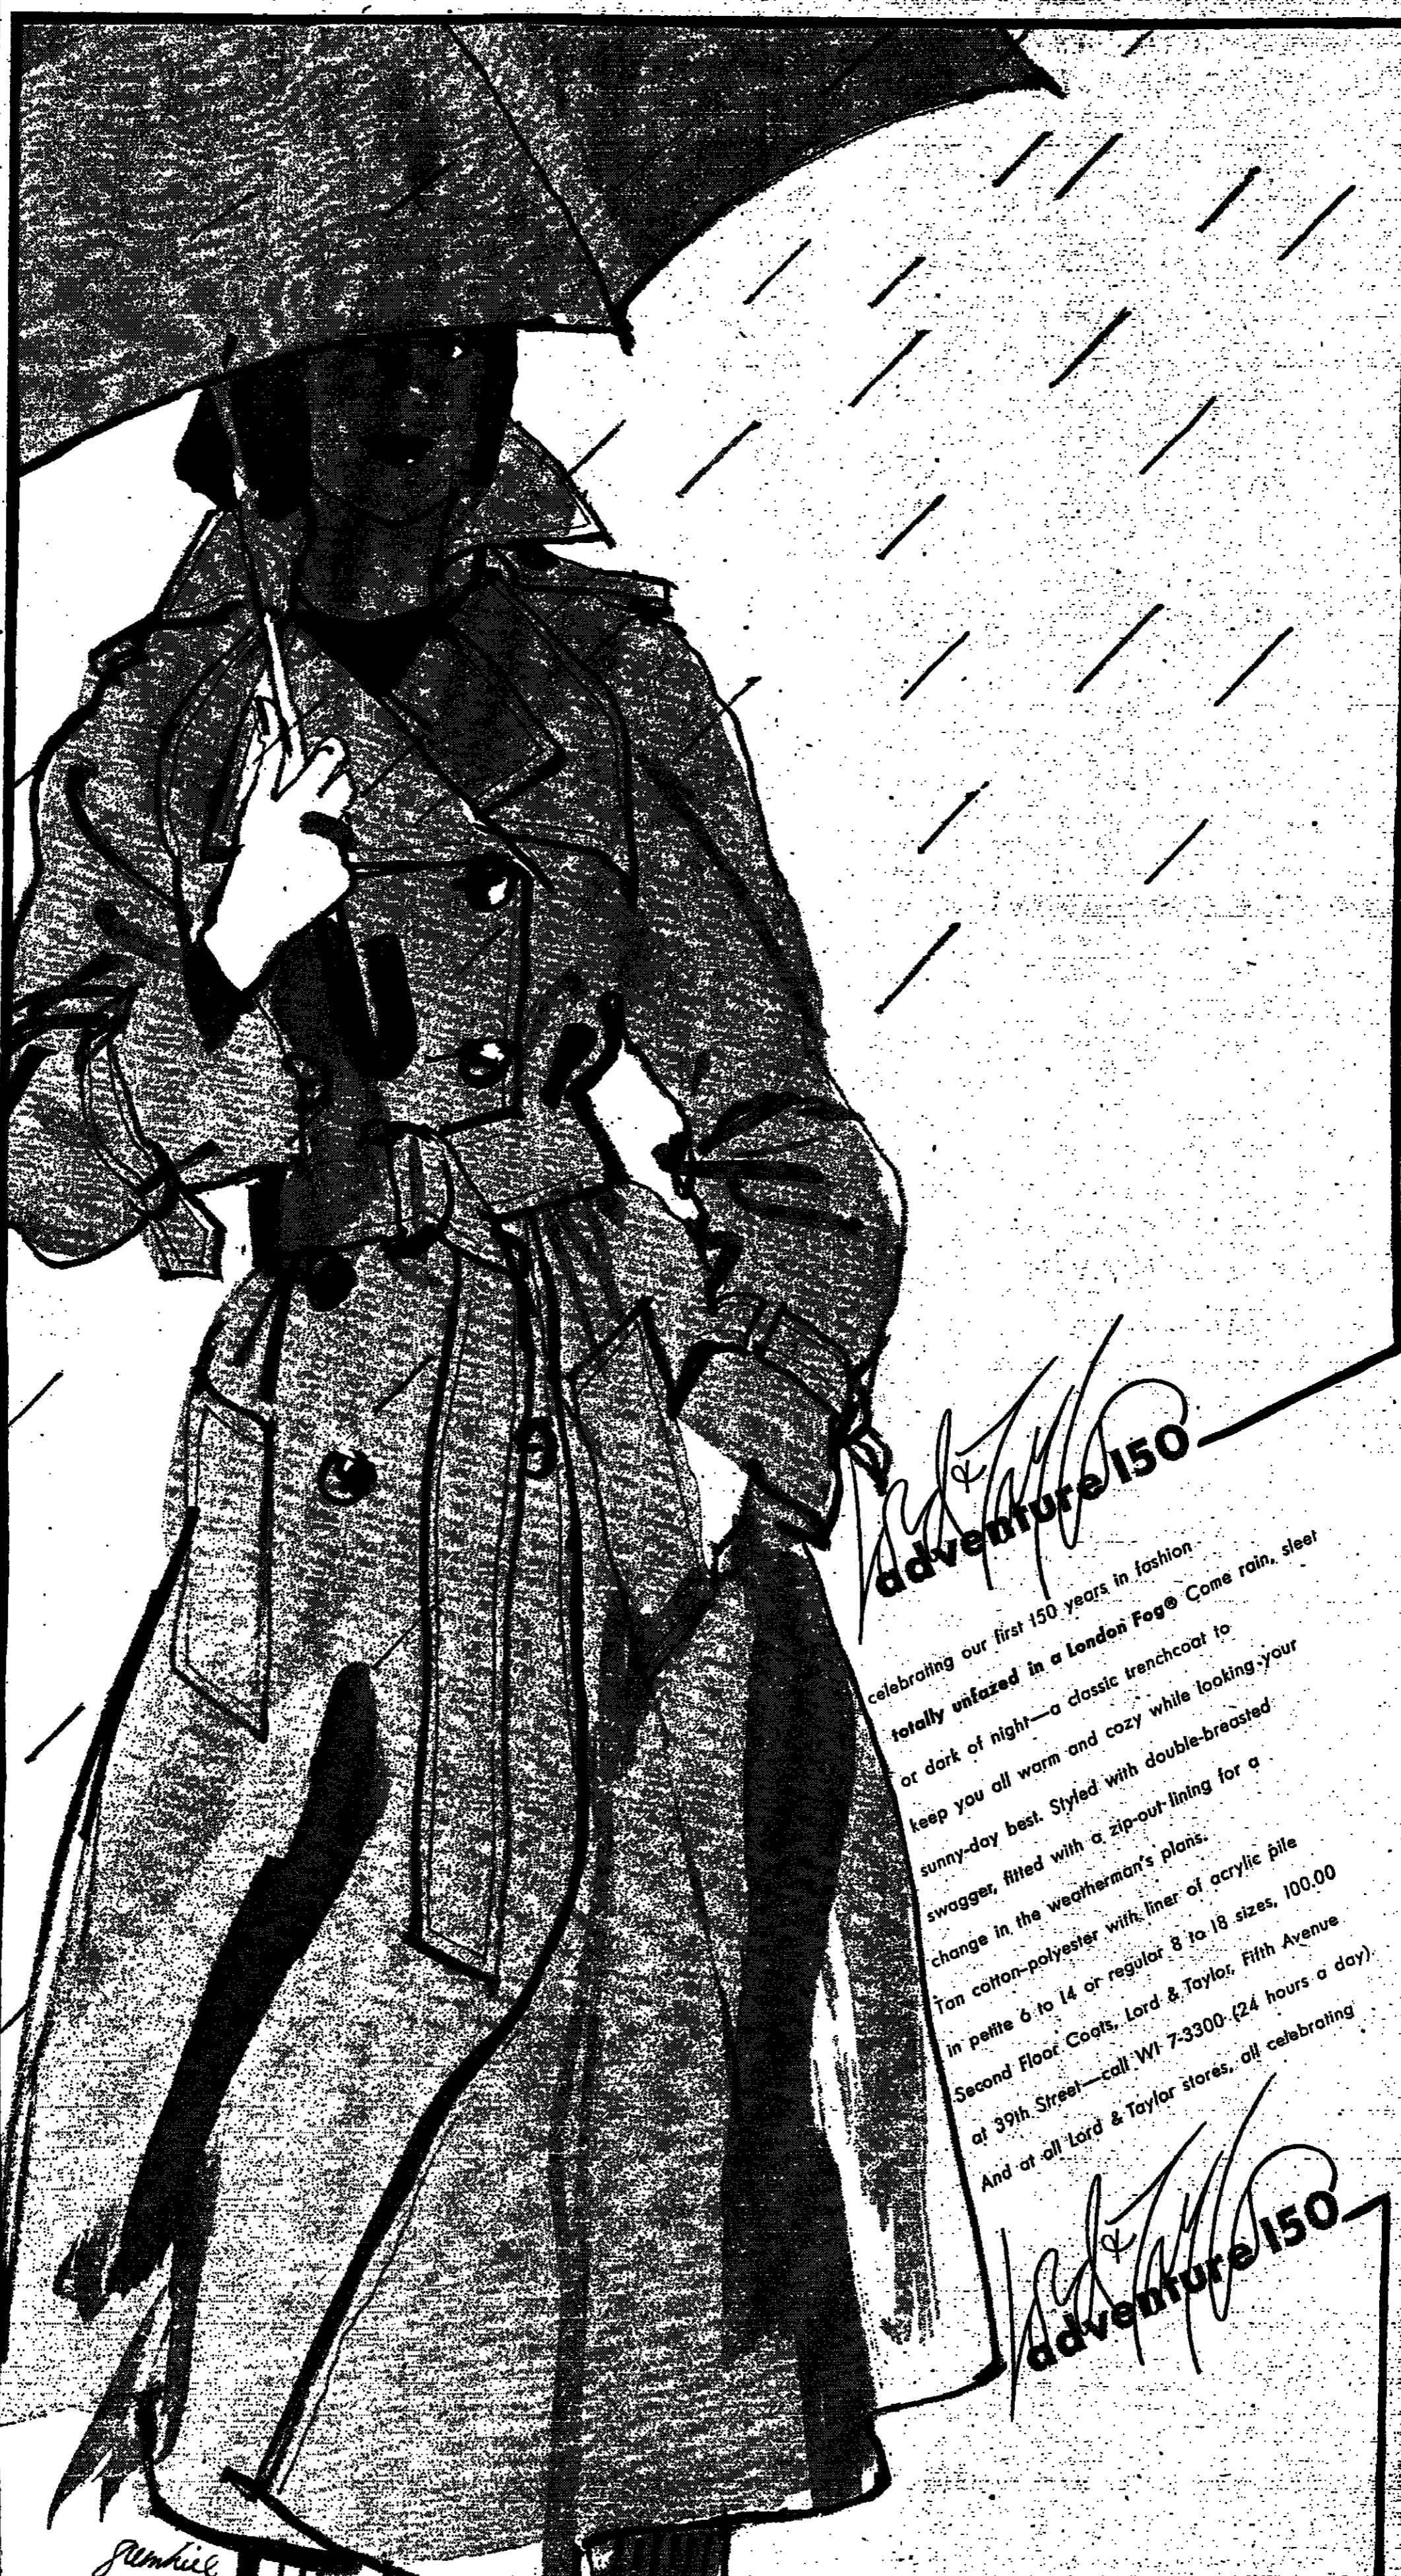

In his memorandum, Mr. Benson said that his Bureau and Agriculture Department inspectors in New York had been engaged in several investigations of stamp processing or redeeming an inordinate number of ATP (Authorization) stamps or food stamps.

Use of Scholastic Aptitude Tests Again Are Issue at Three Colleges

By GENE L. MAEROEF

The status of the Scholastic Aptitude Test, a main admission criterion at the country's most selective institutions of higher education, has become an issue at three colleges that have questioned its use.

Bowdoin College in Brunswick, Me., which attracted attention almost seven years ago by making the examination optional for its applicants, plans to review the policy, which some faculty members have criticized.

Hollins College in Roanoke County, Va., which abandoned the compulsory use of the test in a less publicized move three years ago, is reinstating it as an admission criterion.

Vassar College in Poughkeepsie, N.Y., yesterday edged in the other direction, starting a study to decide by June whether to make the aptitude test optional instead of required of its applicants.

The three colleges' actions come at a time when the Scholastic Aptitude Test is under intense academic debate, not only because students' scores have declined for 13 years but also because of challenges to the test's appropriateness as an admissions tool.

Ann Splitstone, the admissions director of Hollins, said that the small, liberal arts colleges for women had been forced to go back to requiring Scholastic Aptitude Test scores from applicants because of changes in the high schools that have made it more difficult to evaluate candidates.

"A few more schools from which we draw students allowed pass/fail courses, a few more dropped rank in class and an increasing number of schools have adopted a policy preventing the guidance officer from sending evaluations of student character, motivation and preparation," Miss Splitstone said.

At Bowdoin, a highly competitive, coeducational college of 1,100 students, Paul Nyhus, the dean, said that there was a growing belief among faculty members, especially in the sciences, that "students with low S.A.T. scores will probably not do well in either mathematics or the sciences."

In recent years Bowdoin has reportedly begun encouraging the submission of aptitude test scores by applicants, even though the official policy remained that the test was optional.

Richard Moll, the former Bowdoin admissions director, who was a firm supporter of keeping the aptitude test on an optional basis, is now admissions director at Vassar and was apparently instrumental in Vassar's decision to review its use of the test.

"The faculty admissions committee here will go through a thorough review of the validity of the test on Vassar's campus to see if it should be required," Mr. Moll said.

Summary of Report on 'Future of World Economy' Issued by Department of Economics

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Oct. 13—Following is the summary of the report on "The Future of the World Economy" prepared by an international team of economists and issued today by the United Nations Department of Economic and Social Affairs:

The findings of this study can be briefly summarized as follows:

Target rates of growth of gross product in the developing regions, set by the International Development Strategy for the Second United Nations Development Decade, are not sufficient to start closing the income gap between the developing and the developed countries. Higher growth rates in developing countries in the 1980's and 1990's, coupled with slightly lower rates in the developed countries (as compared to their long-term trends), are needed to reduce, at least by half, the average income gap by 2000.

The principal limits to sustained economic growth and accelerated development are political, social and institutional in character rather than physical. No insurmountable physical barriers exist within the 20th century to the accelerated development of the developing regions.

Unevenness in Distribution

The most pressing problem of feeding the rapidly increasing population of the developing regions can be solved by bringing under cultivation large areas of currently unexploited arable land and by doubling and trebling land productivity. Both tasks are technically feasible but are contingent on drastic measures of public policy favorable to such development and on social and institutional changes in the developing countries.

The problem of the supply of mineral resources for accelerated development is not a problem of absolute scarcity in the present century but rather a problem of exploiting less productive and more costly deposits of minerals and of intensive exploration of of new deposits, especially in the regions which are not currently known to be richly endowed with vast mineral resources, so as to reduce the unevenness in the distribution of such reserves between the various regions of the world.

With current commercially available abatement technology, pollution is not an unmanageable problem. It is technically possible to keep net emissions of pollution in the developed regions at their current levels. Full application of relatively strict abatement standards would be less of a general problem in most of the developing regions in this century and would be largely limited to abatement activities in certain industrial areas and to urban solid-waste disposal. However, even if relatively strict abatement standards were gradually applied in the developing regions, the overall economic cost of pollution abatement is not estimated to exceed 1.5-2 percent of gross product—that is, it does not present an insurmountable barrier for economic development of these regions.

Accelerated development in developing regions is possible only under the condition that from 30 to 35 percent, and in some cases up to 40 percent, of their gross product is used for capital investment. A steady increase in the investment ratio to these levels necessitates drastic measures of economic policy in the field of taxation and credit, increasing the role of public investment and the public sector in production and the infrastructure. Measures leading to a more equitable income distribution are needed to increase the effectiveness of such policies. Significant social and institutional changes would have to accompany these policies. Investment resources coming from abroad would be important but are secondary as compared to the internal sources.

Stress on Heavy Industry

Accelerated development points to the necessity of a faster growth, on the average, of heavy industry, as compared to the overall rates of expansion for the manufacturing industry. This is certainly true on the broad regional if not on a small-country basis, increasing the possibilities of industrial cooperation between the developing countries. In many regions, however, light industry would remain a leading manufacturing sector for a long time, providing, among other things, a basis for a significant increase in the exports of manufactured products from the developing countries.

Accelerated development would lead to a continuous significant increase in the share of the developing regions in world gross product and industrial production, as compared to the relative stagnation of these shares in recent decades. Because of the high income elasticity of the demand for imports this would certainly entail a significant increase in the share of these regions in world imports to support internal development. However, the increase in their share of world exports is expected to be slower owing to severe supply constraints in the developing regions and the relatively slower pace at which the competitive strength of their manufacturing industries would be built up. For those reasons accelerated development poses the danger of large potential trade and payments deficits in most of the developing regions.

One is to reduce the rates of development in accordance with the balance-of-payments constraint. Another way to close the potential payments gap by introducing changes into the economic relations between developing and developed countries, as perceived by the Declaration on the Establishment of the New International Economic Order—namely, by stabilizing commodity markets stimulating exports of manufacturers from the developing countries, increasing financial transfers and so on.

Increasing Export Earnings

A relatively stable increase in the prices of minerals and agricultural goods exported by the developing countries, as compared to prices of manufactured goods, is one way of increasing the export earnings of these countries and closing their potential payment deficit. Higher agricultural prices are also called for owing to technological requirements and the relative scarcity of natural resources, which makes them relatively more costly as time goes by. However, because of the uneven way in which mineral resources are currently distributed between various developing regions, these price changes would be of advantage to some regions, while placing an additional economic and financial burden on the others. Special schemes, providing for financial compensation to the net importing developing regions, would be a possible way to reduce these imbalances.

For developing regions which are not large net exporters of minerals or agricultural goods, the main way to reduce the potential trade imbalance is to significantly decrease their import dependence on manufactured products in the course of industrialization, while at the same time increasing their share of world exports of some manufactured products, particularly those emanating from light industry. Building up the competitive strength of such products in the world market is an important prerequisite, combined with the reduction of tariffs and other barriers imposed on the exports of the developing regions to the developed regions. An increase in the flow of aid to the developing regions, measures to create a more favorable climate for and a better mix of capital investment flows to these regions, a reduction in the financial burden arising from foreign investment in these regions are important but are secondary measures as compared to the measures commodity manufacturing products. To insure adequate two general conditions first, far-reaching in a social, political and economic character in the developing and second, significant development leading to reduction of the income gap between the developing and the developed countries can only be achieved if, each of these measures is sufficient, but when in hand, they will have the desired outcome.

Average Church Donation: $137 Above '74, but Not Up to Inflation

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (UPI)—The National Council of Churches said today that the average church member gave $137.09 in 1975, a slight increase over 1974 but not large enough to keep pace with inflation.

The survey was based on figures from 42 denominations representing about 49 percent of the giving to United States churches.

Total giving to the 42 churches in the 1975 survey amounted to $5,353,545,021 with about 50 cents of each of these dollars staying with the local congregation, resulting in $1,125,557,544 going to mission and other activities outside the local church.

The survey also looked at the giving of nine "mainline" Protestant denominations and found that while membership was continuing to decline the membership was giving more but still not enough to keep pace with inflation.

Giving in the "elite" denominations increased 6.2 percent but the rise in costs resulting from inflation in 1975 was 7 percent.

October 16th is our birthday! Our first!

We've just completed one whole year of banking and we're delighted to announce that we have over 7,100 shareholders, more than 8,000 depositors, and a lot to celebrate. We built a full-service commercial bank to house a financial library for women, to give space to women for financial forums, and to give gallery space to women artists to exhibit their work. Now women from all over the world see our bank as a landmark and are proud of it.

We started with $0.00 in deposits and we have passed $13,000,000.00.

We are happy to say that, just as we planned, a majority of our borrowers are women. And men love the bank too.

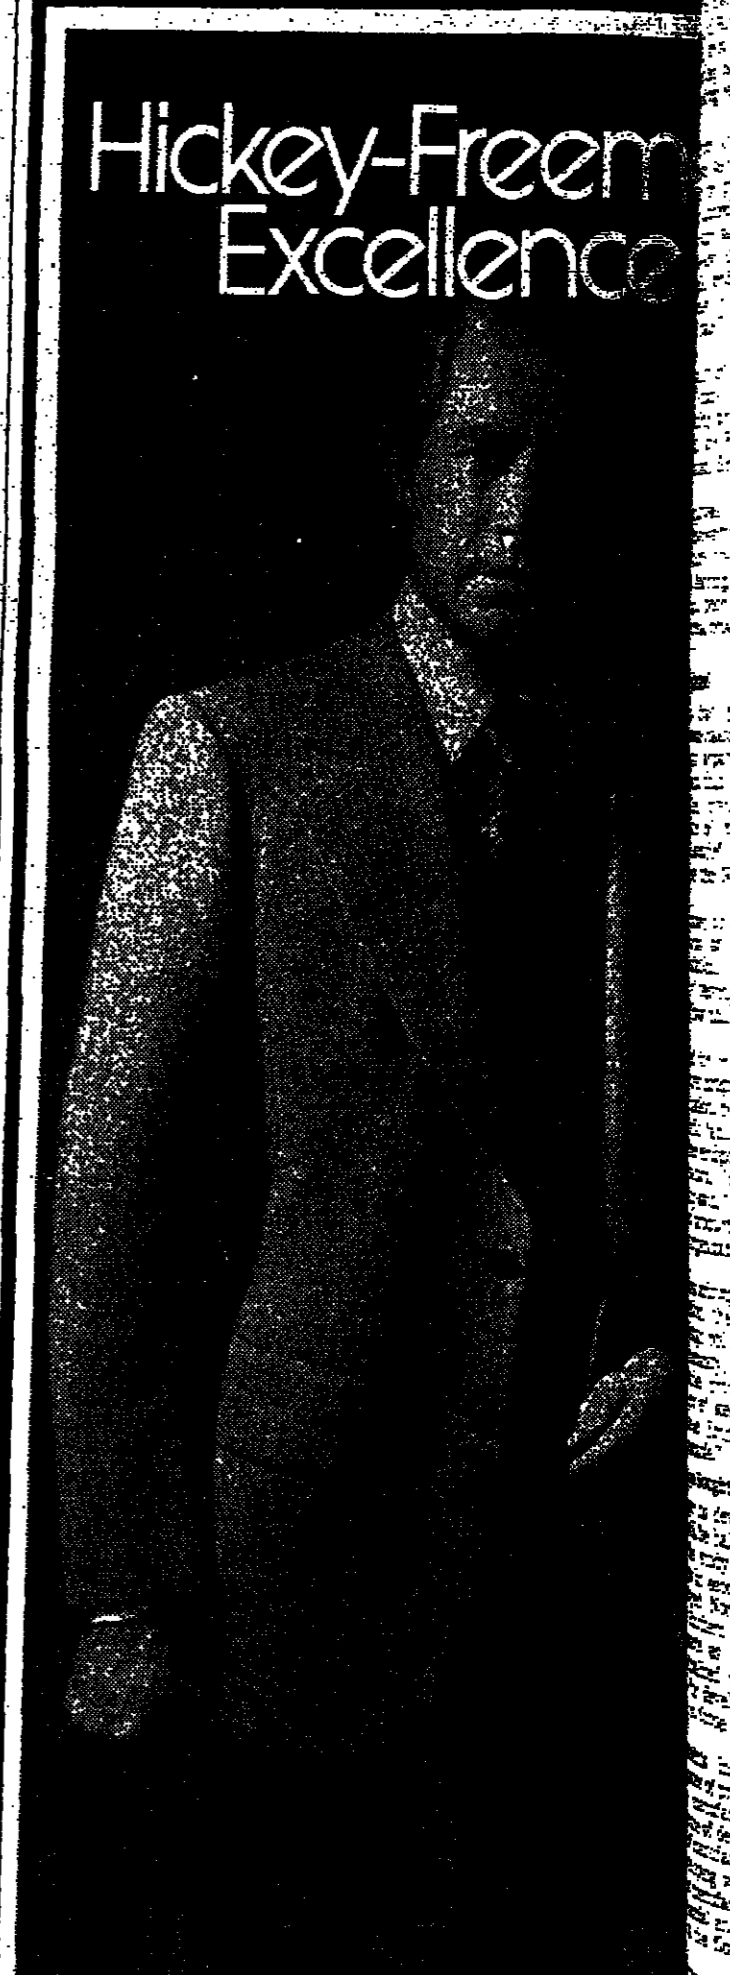

We have a staff that any corporation would be proud of. And we want to thank them, you, and everyone who's helped us grow day by day. So come help us celebrate our first birthday this Saturday, October 16th, 1976. The cake's on us.

tion of both these conditions. Clearly, of them taken separately is insufficient, but when developed hand in hand, will be able to produce the desired "balance."

As economists' report, titled "The Future of the World Economy," is being led by the United Nations Department of Economic and Social Affairs. Of particular more far-reaching importance, the data of computerized data contributing to the study are to be retained and continually brought up to date to assist member governments in their own economic planning over the next two decades.

Wide Controversy Likely

Our aim is to introduce realism into economic development plans," said Mr. Leontief, a professor of economics at New York University, in announcing publication of the study. As such it is bound to generate controversy among economists and politicians alike during the discussions about economic interdependence and cooperation at the United Nations conference of 15 international economists from Latin America and Western Europe, Japan, the United States and leading third-world nations are to convene here next week to start planning specific steps for utilizing the newly codified data.

Since 1972, when the private study was called the Club of Rome published "Limits to Growth" analysis, economists have argued whether its warnings were justified, particularly as they seemed to threaten the hopes of the third world for higher living standards.

In April the Club of Rome seemed to urge back somewhat from its more pessimistic conclusions—as did another of the Club's doomsayers, Herman Kahn of the Hudson Institute, in his latest study of core trends published in May.

Profound Efforts Required

Professor Leontief rejected the label "pessimistic" for his study, since the analysis proposed would require profound efforts by rich and poor nations. But the analysis seemed to flesh out the concept of "organic growth" developed by the Club of Rome, which takes account of improving basic quality of human life and avoiding environmental pollution.

The economies—and hence living standards—in both rich and poor sectors of the world would continue to grow through the rest of the century, according to the Leontief analysis. "But a tiny sacrifice by the developed world—less than 1 percent in growth rate—would produce very high percentage increase in the 'developing countries' growth rate," Mr. Leontief said.

Carried out under the auspices of the United Nations, the Leontief study was financed by contributions totaling nearly $1,000 from the Netherlands, the Ford Foundation and the United Nations Secretariat.

Unlike earlier academic analyses that to extrapolate future developments from existing trends, this study started assuming a desired goal: halving the income gap between rich and poor nations in per capita gross national product by the end of this century.

Specific Steps Calculated

Working backward from that goal, Professor Leontief and his team calculated the specific economic and organizational steps necessary to reach that goal in present conditions. This involved use of the complex technique of input-output analysis that Mr. Leontief pioneered and for which he won the Nobel Prize.

Basically, this technique draws its conclusions from the interactions of vast amounts of concrete statistical and mathematical data, instead of relying on theoretical constructions of how national economies should behave.

The major changes called for in the third world involve agriculture: programs for land reclamation and irrigation, public and private investment, credit facilities, supply of machinery and farm equipment and resettlement of agricultural labor. Even such reforms, the study said, "doubling and trebling of land productivity a realistic technical and organizational possibility."

On environmental concerns arising out of increasing industrialization, the study concluded that "although pollution is a grave problem for humanity, it is technologically manageable problem, and that the economic cost of keeping pollution within manageable limits is relatively high but not unbearable."

Change in Relationships Sought

Since the gravest danger to development in the third world will be balance-of-payments pressures, the study proposed a series of changes in economic relations between developed Northern countries and developing Southern ones; these are likely to promote as much controversy in the industrialized world as the internal reforms for developing economies could generate in those countries.

The necessary adjustments include: faster change in relative prices of primary commodities as against manufactured goods; decreasing dependence of developing countries on imports of manufactured goods; increasing the developing world's share of world exports in manufactured goods; larger flows of financial and economic aid and changes in the flows of capital investment.

Low-Spending Congress Candidates Cited for Not Filing Expense Data

CONCORD, N.H., Oct. 13 (AP)—The Federal Elections Commission has filed a complaint in Federal District Court charging John Adams, a Republican Congressional candidate, with not filing certain contribution and expenditure reports.

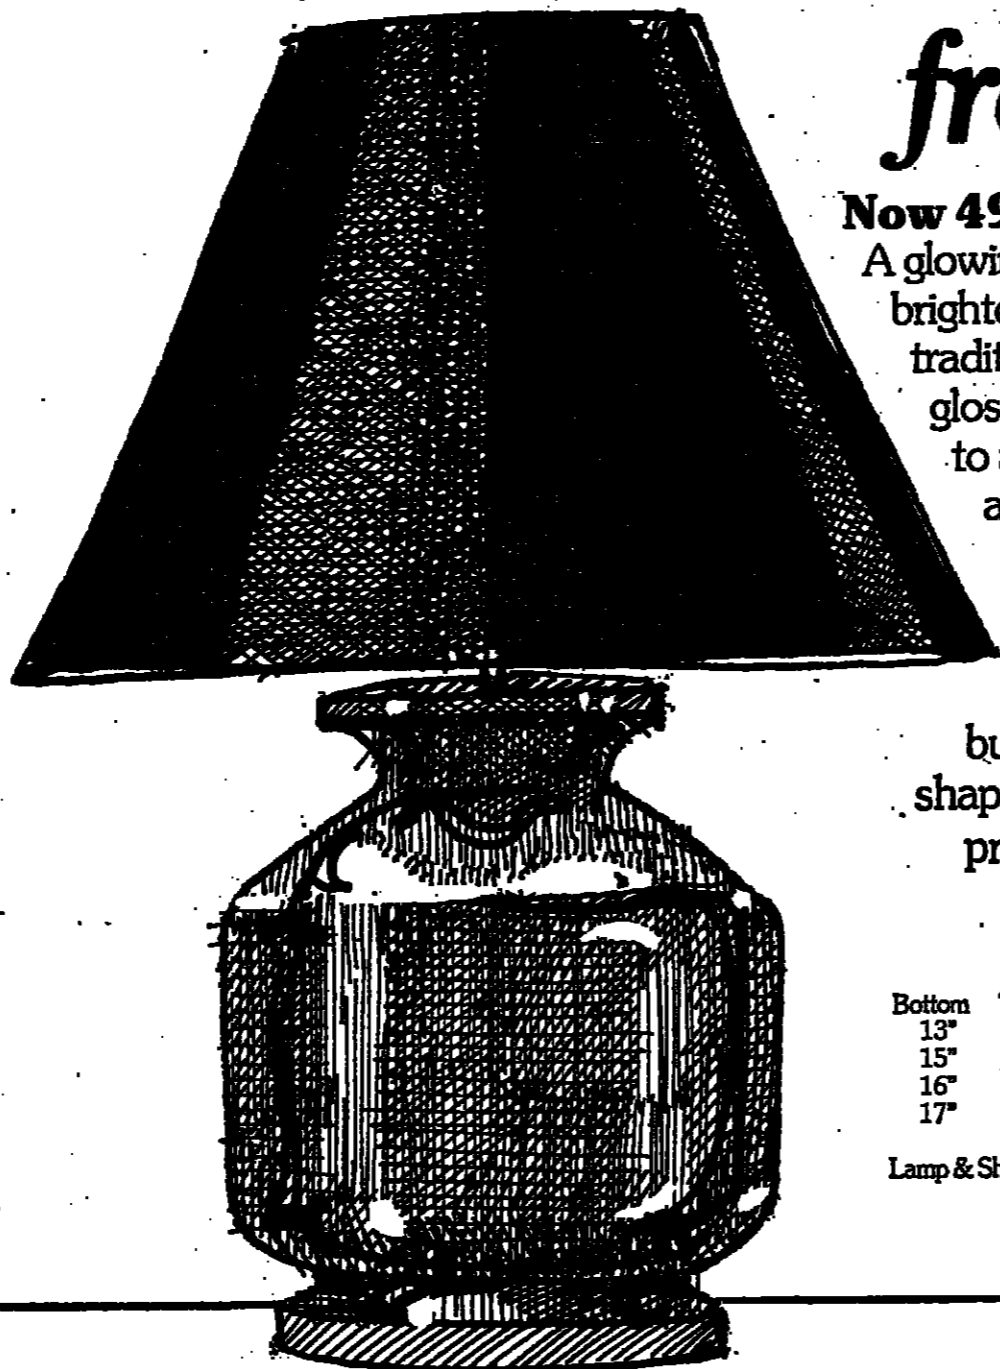

The commission asked the court yesterday to fine Mr. Adams, who won his party's primary election without waging a campaign, up to $5,000 for allegedly violating the Federal Election Campaign Act.

The law requires candidates for Congress to submit to the commission lists of campaign contributors and expenditures in the primary and the general election campaigns. The reports were due in July and September.

Adams, 61 years old, who is challenging Democratic incumbent Norman E. D'Agnone in the First District, lives in Exeter. In a telephone interview he said he had filed no reports because he had not spent more than $100, including the $50 filing fee.

He surprised Republican party officials on Sept. 14 by defeating three opponents for his party nomination.

Mistrial Is Ruled for Susan Saxe As Murder-Trial Jury Deadlocks

By JOHN KIFNER
Special to The New York Times

BOSTON, Oct. 13—A mistrial was declared today in the bank robbery-murder case of Susan Saxe as the jury found itself hopelessly deadlocked.

"We are numb from this discussion," the jury foreman, Dennis L. Milford, told Justice Walter H. McLaughlin in Suffolk County Superior Court. Mr. Milford said that the deliberations, which began last Thursday afternoon, had reached a point where "further rational exchange of viewpoints" had become impossible.

Miss Saxe, a 27-year-old antiwar activist and former Brandeis University honor student, was charged with participating in a September, 1970, Boston bank robbery in which a policeman, Walter A. Schroeder, was shot to death. She had been on the 10-most-wanted list of the Federal Bureau of Investigation for five years before her arrest.

A previously convicted armed robber, William A. Gilday, was convicted of the actual shooting, but under Massachusetts felony murder law anyone allegedly participating in a crime in which a murder is committed is also held responsible. The robbery of the State Street Trust branch was allegedly committed, at the height of the antiwar protest era, to finance radical activities.

No Witnesses for Defense

The defense put on no witnesses, suddenly ending the trial last Wednesday after three weeks. The defense team had prepared a list of 21 witnesses, including the former antiwar activist priest, Daniel J. Berrigan.

The decision by the chief defense attorney, Nancy Gertner, to rest her case after the prosecution had presented 24 witnesses appeared to stun the judge and much of the courtroom.

But in her summation to the jury, Miss Gertner argued that "we decided the Government had proved our case." She pointed out that the Government eye-witnesses had not been able to identify Miss Saxe as the woman in a purple dress they had seen in the bank.

The prosecution put on three bank employees, one a policeman for 32 years, and two customers who had witnessed the robbery, but none were asked to identify Miss Saxe. The closest they came was one who said the woman had "thick lips" and pointed to Miss Saxe as having similar lips.

Testimony by Participants

The heart of the prosecution's case was the testimony of two confessed participants in the robbery, Robert Valeri, a former convict who helped convict Mr. Gilday, and Michael Fleischer, a one-time radical. Both men have received consideration for their testimony.

The jury, courtroom observers noted, seemed younger and better-educated than is the norm here. The questions they asked of the jury concentrated largely on the credibility of Government witnesses.

After declaring the mistrial shortly after 3 P.M., Justice McLaughlin delivered a long warning to the jurors and all participants in the case against making any public statements for fear of prejudicing a possible new trial.

Prosecutor James T. Gaffney, supervising the locking up of the evidence, including a box with the muzzle of a carbine sticking out, declined to comment on whether there would be a new trial, although this was regarded as likely.

Miss Saxe remains in Federal custody. She has pleaded guilty but has yet to be sentenced on charges growing out of a Philadelphia bank robbery.

When the trial ended, two sets of people remained on the wooden benches of the now quiet courtroom, finally leaving separately, silently. In one group were two sisters of Officer Schroeder, who had been part of a police family. In the other were Miss Saxe's parents.

AL TO SCIENTISTS FOR ACTIVISM

urges Them to Help Fight Global Disasters and to Work in Political Process

WALTER SULLIVAN
Special to The New York Times
WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—An international group of scientists has challenged leaders around the world to come together and help guide the world through a variety of potential disasters.

As the world has passed, they say in their report, scientists can justly isolate themselves from world problems and the political process needed to cope with them.

The report was presented today at a meeting of the National Academy of Sciences in conjunction with the meeting of the International Scientific Unions, under way in Washington.

The report is, to some extent, a response to a resolution of the General Assembly of the United Nations. It embraces a number of commissions and committees. A large percentage of the efforts in science are conducted under the auspices of those of the United Nations.

The report "to our colleagues and to the world" was presented here by 17 scientists from 17 countries who met in Washington last June under the auspices of the National Academy of Sciences.

The report was written by Dr. Lewis M. Branscomb, a scientist of the International Atomic Energy Commission and former director of the National Bureau of Standards, Branscomb and several other members of the group enlarged on the report at today's meeting.

The report asks scientists "to rethink their roles in the world" in the face of such threats as nuclear war and raw material depletion. It regards the scientific and technical activities as an integral part of the world's political process, "not the private domain of a technological elite."

The report is on "Bad Example" of the Soviet-American arms race. It says that a certain level of stability is needed to prevent an intra-south arms race. It says that a "ominous threat, according to the report, is the nuclear weapons, the scientists to become "one of the have-nots may be what they consider a just world's goods."

The report says that the nuclear powers must be toward correcting the "problem" they currently are providing nuclear proliferation. It says that to correct the inequities to current instability, they must be toward correcting the political process.

The report says that the political process, says the report, is to slow the arms race here the evolving political process the world can cope with.

The report "was expressed reality of scientists and society to meet the new challenges, radical revamping of political institutions. Among the recommendations were the following:

1. The process for generating the introduction and evolution of technology. It is difficult, "and it is" to suppress "attractive but harmful" technologies before they are evaluated. But it is to wait until irreversible damage is caused. "Furthermore, it is the responsibility of the engineer to consequences of his contributions as it is for scientists to help create healthy foundations for technological alternatives.

2. Institutions, and provide analysis for anticipatory action. The appeal says: "The information presently available are not enough. Scientists to create new problems for both scientific and technological search."

3. The appeal notes that the information is "preliminary" and that "Traditional scientific information, are not well suited to such tasks."

4. The public a sufficient understanding of the risks, technical consequences to support decisions. "The options of those decisions are limited by sense of priorities and by must often forgo early warnings of long-term consequences the public understands such decisions. It is difficult leadership, however, to enable the technical community the best choices.

5. To sustain new standards or appropriate to research early warnings and policy decisions. The appeal says that emphasis was placed in making the world more prosperous developments.

6. The diffusion of scientific information throughout the world. "Two-thirds of anticipated growth will probably be in areas where rainfall—and production—are particularly low."

7. The appeal, in agriculture. There is no "verooming" of financial, sociological, difficulties of increasing tropical population in temperate zones. "Third World countries are able to cut birth rates by relatively high literacy and personal income, as well as "a fairly high, a comparatively equitable distribution, a good community, a fairly effective family program."

8. The appeal, in particular Sri Lanka: this has been achieved. The implications are low. The appeal, is that "appropriate social policies" as well as needed. "Recommendations are for of international institutions, the scientific unions, to take on global issues."

Workers Start Returning to Assembly Lines After Ratifying Pact, but 27 Plants Still Remain Closed

LIAM K. STEVENS
of The New York Times

13—The strikebound company, operating under a labor contract that expired yesterday by a paper-gan haltingly to resume work.

are a minority among the more than 165,000 U.A.W. members who went on strike a month ago, they had been guaranteed a veto over the contract had they chosen to exercise it.

A Sputtering End

Like all nationwide auto strikes, this one is ending not abruptly, but sputtering. Although the national contract has been ratified, only 72 of the union's 99 bargaining units had settled late this afternoon on contracts involving local issues.

Included in this group, according to the company, were units at a number of plants considered to be essential to full and sustained production.

Nonetheless, operations were being resumed at a number of plants and installations around the country.

"We can build cars effectively," a company spokesman said, "and if we get some of these key locals settled, there will be no interruption of production."

The spokesman explained that sufficient supplies were "in the pipeline" to keep automobile assembly rolling for a few days but that the supplies could dry up if local settlements were not reached in some plants that feed assembly operations.

The strike was clearly reflected, a company spokesman acknowledged today, in Ford's sales for the first 10 days of October. While industry-wide car sales were up 7 percent from the comparable period a year ago, Ford's were down 8 percent.

Not only that, the spokesman said, the strike's effect on sales is just beginning. The company is not expected to reach normal stock levels, he said, until January.

According to some estimates, Ford lost $1 billion in revenue in the month the nationwide strike lasted, and its striking employees lost nearly $200 million in wages. Most analysts, however, have said that the walkout did little or no serious harm to the national economy.

Some analysts have calculated that it will raise Ford's labor costs by an average of about 10 percent a year, roughly in line with earlier labor settlements in 1976.

The contract provides for a wage increase of about 3 percent a year over three years, plus automatic cost-of-living increases. In addition, it opens the door to an eventual four-day workweek by guaranteeing workers 12 more paid days off. It also provides an "inflation-protection" bonus, payable on Jan. 1, 1978, of up to $800 to retired workers. And it pumps more money into the fund from which workers receive nearly full pay when they are laid off.

The contract, the U.A.W. hopes, will set the pattern for settlements at the other auto companies. It was unclear just when the union would turn its bargaining attention back to those companies. Ford was this year's "target" in the union's plan to strike one company, thereby putting competitive pressure on it to settle and establish the industry pattern.

While most of the strikers were preparing to return to work, a group of dissidents among the U.A.W.'s skilled workers was raising questions about the vote count by which the union leaders said the skilled workers had ratified the contract. Many of those workers have expressed dissatisfaction with some aspects of the settlement, including, primarily, wages and the subcontracting of skilled work to outside companies.

Ford Signs Medical Training Bill To Send Doctors to Areas of Need

By NANCY HICKS
Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—President Ford signed into law today a compromise $2.1 billion health manpower bill that for the first time ties Federal support to medical schools to the redistribution of doctors by location and choice of practice.

A much stricter bill that would have limited the choice of doctors in selecting their practice situations was pocket vetoed by Mr. Ford at the end of the last Congress in 1974.

The new bill ties almost all scholarship aid for medical school students to their enrollment in the National Health Service Corps, which places doctors in areas of need. It limits scholarship opportunities to those who would agree to at least two years' service, unless they would pay back three times the amount of scholarship aid advanced, plus interest.

President Ford said in a statement, "Last year, the Administration submitted to Congress a legislative proposal based on findings which showed that while there was no longer a shortage of physicians in the United States, there were alarming signs that this country was facing two growing problems with respect to these practitioners."

The two problems Mr. Ford said, were that not enough doctors were choosing to practice in rural and inner-city areas and that there was a decline in the number of doctors practicing "primary medicine"—general and family practice and pediatrics.

The three-year bill therefore, requires medical schools with teaching hospitals to set aside an increasing portion of their residency training positions for this type of training. If the schools cannot meet the national average among themselves the Federal Government would be given the authority to impose a quota—half of all residents by fiscal year 1980—at each school. Failure to meet the requirement would deprive a school of its per student grant, called capitation, which amounts to about $2000 a student a year.

Called a "Good Bill"

The geographic redistribution would be handled by increasing the amount of money available for National Health Service Corps doctors from $15 million this year to $47 million in fiscal year 1978.

"On balance, it appears to be a good bill" said Dr. John A. Cooper, president of the Washington-based Association of American Medical Colleges whose 115-member schools receive about half of their total support from the Federal Government.

ANY CURBS WORK STATE PHYSICIANS

Practices Barred in Many—Mental Hygiene Agency's Loss of Top Doctors

ward in charge of enforcing Carey's conflict-of-interest law for state employees who set new limits on the amount private practice in which doctors who work for the State of Mental Hygiene can engage in that are almost certain to board into direct conflict with the provisions of the new guidelines adopted by the seven-member Board of Public Disclosure last sent to Governor Carey yesterday. Directors of the 59 Mental Hygiene will no longer be allowed to practice.

Other doctors, all of whom earn less than $30,000 a year, will be allowed to practice for five hours of private practice a week.

William D. Cabin, executive director of the Board of Public Disclosure, said that half of the Mental Hygiene's doctors and psychiatrists, about 25 of the facility directors, private practices ranging from 10 to 40 hours a week, had at the Bronx Psychiatric Institute he earned $80,000 this outside work.

Disciplined by Department regulations have been allowed to practice outside the department. The board has repeatedly criticized the board as well as the State. The board's disclosure is empowered to enforce regulations under Carey's Executive Order No. 10, which says any outside work by earning more than $30,000 a year specific job is approved by ence C. Kolb, the Commissioner of Mental Hygiene, has taken the position that private practice outside the department's doctors' professional skills, but also is an incentive to keep doctors in the state. He has warned in a yet a strict application order to his department precipitate an exodus of best doctors. Carey has major difficulties in retaining staff, a departmentman said yesterday when in new guidelines.

5th Small Church Fire-Bombed
In Mainly Black Area in Las Vegas

LAS VEGAS, Oct. 13 (AP)—Another small church was fire-bombed early today in a predominantly black area of Las Vegas. It was the fifth such blaze in the last three weeks.

Jim Hinkle, a spokesman for the fire department, said the Ebenezer Church of God in Christ had been hit by two fire bombs but the blaze had been quickly doused and caused only minor damage.

The authorities stepped up patrols in the west Las Vegas area after the recent fires. A man calling himself "John the Baptist" took responsibility for the first four fires.

Mr. Hinkle said it appeared that the same person might be responsible for the latest fire.

Damage to the other churches has ranged from moderate to heavy, mainly in pulpit and lectern areas. All five churches have mostly black congregations.

Woman and Man Are Charged
In Jersey Murder of Husband

HILLSBOROUGH, N. J., Oct. 13 (AP)—A woman from Middlesex, N. J. and a man described by the police as a male friend, have been charged with murdering the woman's husband, who was found fatally shot on the Somerset County estate of Doris Duke, the tobacco heiress.

The two suspects, Roseanne Schiavone, 29 years old and Bruce Michael, 25, of Bridgewater, were charged yesterday in the death of Vincent Schiavone of Staten Island. Mr. Schiavone's body was discovered Sunday.

The Schiavone's had been separated for six months, according to Donald Dowches, Hillsborough Police Chief.

Mrs. Schiavone and Mr. Michael were arraigned in Somerville before Superior Court Judge Arthur Meredith, who remanded them to the county jail.

Justice Greenfield's decision was announced at that point. He ruled that Dr. Holloman's refusal to issue an operating license unless he has his will" was "arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable." The State Commissioner of Health has acted in excess of his authority," Justice Greenfield wrote in the decision. "He may set standards and apply regulations, but he may not dictate the details of management, operation and control to those whose responsibility it legally is."

Justice Greenfield ordered the Health Department to issue the operating certificate when it received a copy today of a so-called affiliation contract for the hospital worked out by the Hospitals Corporation, with the private, nonprofit Montefiore Hospital.

Specific Terms Needed Dr. Holloman said yesterday that the Board had agreed to contract with Montefiore Hospital, but that the specific terms of the agreement — such as whether that hospital would provide obstetrics and specialized surgery — would depend on the Medicaid reimbursement rate set by the state.

Meanwhile Marvin Nailor, assistant to Dr. Whalen, said that Dr. Martin Cherkasky, administrator of Montefiore was scheduled to meet today with the Health Department in Albany to explain that hospital's proposals for the contract.

The meeting had been called following complaints by Montefiore officials of being shut out of talks last week that resulted in the state agency's telling the Hospitals Corporation to approve a reportedly less costly proposal by Misericordia Hospital.

The proposal by Misericordia was projected to cost $13 million over a five-year period compared to $15 million for Montefiore's plan. Specifically, Mr. Nailor said that the department would pursue a revision of the Montefiore proposals along the following lines:

1. Running North Central Bronx as a community institution with a small teaching function rather than as a large teaching hospital.

2. Eliminating 300 existing or proposed beds, at Montefiore itself, to alleviate an alleged oversupply of hospital beds in the borough.

3. Dropping a provision calling for pass-through of any future labor-contract costs to public sources.

at 210th Street and Kossum Avenue in a middle-class neighborhood, was built to fill the gap caused by the closing of two other municipal hospitals—Fordham and Morrisania.

The question of who was to run the facility became one of the controversial issues that stymied its opening. Critics said one proposal—to transfer its management to Montefiore—would ultimately work to the disadvantage of the poor people it was designed to serve. This plan was ultimately abandoned.

A later proposal, also dropped, to affiliate with Misericordia, was attacked as scrimping on the quality of service at the new hospital. The plan to affiliate with Montefiore is expected to be approved by the corporation's board today.

CHURCH COUNCIL ADVISES HALT BE SET ON PLUTONIUM

The National Council of Churches has released an "Open Letter to the Presidential Candidates" calling for a national moratorium on the commercial processing of plutonium. Such a moratorium, the Council declared, would permit further research and debate concerning nonnuclear alternatives.

Plutonium, a highly toxic substance produced by nuclear reactors, can be used for fuel and also can be used in atomic weapons.

The Council letter also cited the attainment of full employment as "the nation's No. 1 priority." The National Council represents 80 major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations.

Issue and Debate

Controversy Rages on Whether Municipalities Should Run Own Hospitals

By DAVID BIRD

The battle over whether New York City's deficit-ridden government has enough money to run its new North Central Bronx Hospital has raised a much larger question of whether municipalities should be in the hospital business at all.

New York has been running municipal hospitals to take care of the poor ever since Bellevue opened in 1736, but in the last decade new legislation and the economic pinch have combined to create a force that could make municipal hospitals obsolete.

Traditionally, the municipal hospitals took care of the poor because the poor had no other place to go.

The rich could pay their own way in the more comfortable and prestigious proprietary (private, profit-making) and in the voluntary (private, nonprofit) hospitals.

But in 1966, in a surge of social legislation, Washington brought Medicaid and Medicare into existence that was to pay bills for the poor and the aged no matter where they were treated.

A Trend Is Started

The Government programs started a trend away from municipal hospitals. In 1965, public hospitals cared for 25 percent of the total number of patients. By 1974, the public share had dropped to 19 percent.

The slow erosion of the public system was markedly speeded by the fiscal crisis.

"It was the two factors in combination that really made a difference," says Dr. Lowell E. Bellin, the city's Health Commissioner. "The poor had a chance to go somewhere else and the city was forced to think of economies that would never have been thought of before."

With a $1 billion annual budget the city's Health and Hospitals Corporation, which oversees the municipal hospital system, loomed as a large target for budget cutters.

City officials reasoned that if the required budget savings were not taken out of the municipal hospitals they would have to be taken out of vital services like the Fire and Police Departments.

With Medicare and Medicaid many of the indigent could get treatment someplace else, the reasoning went, but fire and police protection could not easily be obtained elsewhere.

But the future of the municipal hospital system could determine the whole future of health-care delivery.

For Municipals

Defenders of the municipal system say it is important to keep the system if government is going to pay more and more of the hospital bills—assuming national health insurance is not far over the horizon—and it is important for government to run the hospitals too so there will be strict accountability.

Among other issues that defenders of the municipal system are raising now is the specter of the recent Medicaid scandals that have come to the surface as a result of the Government's channeling money to private doctors without adequate control over the funds.

Dr. John L. S. Holloman Jr., the president of the Health and Hospitals Corporation, says that "the fundamental advantage of municipal hospitals is that they spend public money in public and consequently are accountable in a way that voluntary hospitals are not."

Medicaid pays bills only for the very poor. Those earning over about $5,000 a year still must pay their own way, if they can, or do without care.

"Skimming the Cream" Seen

Dr. Holloman says the voluntary hospitals "have gotten rich by skimming the cream, by cutting losses" through not treating the poor who are not covered by programs to pay their bills.

Dr. Holloman doubts that a poor person really gets the same treatment even when he can get into a voluntary hospital.

"A Medicaid patient legally must be treated in the same way as a private patient paying for service," Dr. Holloman says, but he adds: "It seems to me somewhat naive that this in fact is true, especially when a Medicaid patient doesn't have a private physician."

Another strong defender of the municipal system is Donald Rubin, president of the Consumer Commission on the Accreditation of Health Services, a private activist group.

"We've got to have government-operated hospitals," Mr. Rubin says, "so the fee-for-service physicians will not rip us off."

He contends that physicians who are remunerated on the basis of each service perform unnecessary operations and other procedures just to raise their incomes.

In a government-operated hospital where the physician is paid a straight salary, he says, there would be no temptation to perform unnecessary procedures that can harm rather than help a patient.

Mr. Rubin says that municipal hospital systems have deteriorated because they have been "bled" by politicians favoring the private sector. He says that government hospitals can be good.

"After all," Mr. Rubin says, "when the President gets sick he goes to a Government hospital not a private hospital." He was referring to Bethesda Naval Hospital, which takes care of Presidents and other Government officials.

Against Municipals

There is no point in hanging on to a system that no longer has any use," says Dr. Bellin, the Health Commissioner, who refers to the municipals as an "anachronism."

He says that "for the most part there never has been a tradition in this country of excellence under public auspices" and the municipals have the stigma of being second-class places for the poor.

Dr. Bellin says that once there is national health insurance for everyone, there will be no need for municipals.

"If you have the choice of going to the local greasy spoon or the place that serves squash under glass you'll use the greasy spoon only if you don't have money," says Dr. Bellin. "But if I give you a free credit card you're going to go for the squash under glass."

Dr. Bellin decries that the poor receive less than the best care in voluntaries. You now have different classes, he says, "it's a degree of integration that is taking place no place else."

The Impact of Civil Service

Dr. Ray E. Trussell, who once ran the municipal system here as Hospital Commissioner and is now general director of Beth Israel, a leading voluntary institution, says "the inflexibility of civil service is man's worst enemy when it comes to providing medical care." He says it is almost impossible to get the right person in the right place because of rigid seniority rules that dictate who goes where.

Dr. Trussell denies charges that the voluntaries are for the rich. "Beth Israel was founded to serve the poor of the Lower East Side and that is what we do now."

He agrees that some municipal hospitals would still be needed to take care of the poor who did not have government programs to pay their bills but that eventually national health insurance will enable everyone to go to the voluntaries.

The Outlook

Another former Hospital Commissioner, Joseph V. Terenzio, who is now president of the United Hospital Fund, which raises money for the care of the poor, says "the future as one in voluntary hospitals and voluntaries will become somewhat the institutions run by volunteers under strict legal accountability on the use of money."

Dr. J. Warren Toff, the commissioner for New York's Fairness of the State Health Services, says the fight among the voluntaries and municipals going to be settled easily.

"Each of the three ways for the jugular and the chains," Dr. Toff says, "as he is speaking in 36 years in public and not necessarily reflected in a view."

"Each hospital is worth its own name, its own staff is no concern for the system as a whole," he says.

He says there is a great waste of money because each had to have its own staff. Dr. Toff says the health should be regionalized, as would be only enough in obstetrics department, for example, the area's needs in almost every hospital.

"I see a need for all the hospitals if we can arrive at one type may get knocked the municipal system seems weakest of the three."

Pooling of Hospital Services Urged

The New York City Health Systems Agency, set up under a Federal mandate earlier this year, urged a sharp reduction yesterday in government reimbursement to hospitals that refuse to pool expensive services and equipment.

The agency said in a report, individual hospitals have been allowed to duplicate what is offered at nearby institutions, with the government, through reimbursement, picking up the excessive cost of duplication.

To halt the duplication, the agency said in the report, which was presented to Mayor Beame at City Hall, reimbursement should be tied directly to planning.

The city should be divided into regions, the report said, and the needs of each region determined. If excess facilities are found, they would be eliminated through the closing of entire hospitals or of entire departments in some hospitals.

The agency's report is the result of a request by Mayor Beame for study of the city's Health and Hospitals Corporation, which oversees the municipal hospitals.

As the Mayor looked on, Joseph T. Lyngaugh, the agency's executive director, said the municipal hospitals could not be considered as separate entities but had to be integrated with private hospitals in a single health-care system.

"You've got the hospitals out there," he said, "and the question is how do you put them together and make them work as a unit?"

Answering his own question, Mr. Lyngaugh, said that "financial incentive is the key to the whole thing," a hospital's reimbursement linked to "playing ball" with regionalization and eliminating duplication.

To make sure that all hospitals—public and private—are linked and freely available to everybody, the agency recommended that all hospitals expand their admitting privileges to all physicians.

At present, private physicians cannot admit private patients into municipal hospitals, and even in private institutions, doctors do not have free access to all hospitals.

In the Health and Hospitals Corporation itself the agency recommended a decentralization that would give the executive directors of the individual hospitals much more authority and leave the central administration with policy-making and review functions.

The decentralization proposal has been made several times previously. It was put forward in a state health report earlier this year that was highly critical of what was termed the corporation's inefficient management.

State Votes on Nonreturnable Beverage Containers Called Test of the Strength of Environmentalists

By GLADWIN HILL. A recent test of the impetus of environmental movement will come when citizens in Maine, Massachusetts and Colorado vote on measures to ban nonreturnable containers.

In depletion of nonrenewable mineral resources, extra consumption of energy in the constant manufacture of new containers and in higher prices for products.

The 60 billion beverage containers used in 1975 consumed 7 million tons of glass, 2 million tons of steel and 500,000 tons of aluminum.

The attempt to reverse the throwaway life style in a sense represents the farthest reach of the six-year-old "environmental revolution."

The question of doing this has been presented to legislatures, voters and communities throughout the country more than 1,000 times in recent years and, under intense opposition from industry and labor, has nearly always been rejected.

However, the seeming success of the experiment in Oregon and Vermont was topped this year by a Federal move in support of mandatory deposits.

Accordingly, the Election Day fate of the four new proposals will well be an indication of whether sentiment against the throwaway habit is significantly on the ascendancy in the country or is likely to remain an enthusiasm of a specialized minority.

Half the cost of a soft drink may represent the cost of the container. The 5-cent rebate value would be several times the bounty now offered by the sketchy network of recycling depots operated by industry, which have attracted only a trickle of the container stream.

Re-using bottles and systematically recycling cans, it is argued, is less expensive than making new bottles and mining new metal. The Environmental Protection Agency has estimated that the saving in energy could equal as much as 115,000 barrels of oil a day, which approaches 1 percent of national oil consumption.

But the container-return system means more work for consumers, retailers and distributors, and less work for bottle makers, who say that adjusting their plants to the returnable system could take billions of dollars in capital.

A Commerce Department study released a year ago suggested that while a shift to returnables might yield "minimal" reductions in litter and energy consumption, it could cost as much as $2,000 consumer.

But the Federal Energy Administration has just released the results of a 16-month study by independent consultants with quite opposite conclusions.

The study's optimal "scenario," assuming a 90 percent recycling of cans and 10 re-uses a bottle in the year 1982, indicated annual consumer savings of $1.8 billion in retail prices, energy savings equivalent to 81,000 barrels of oil a day and a net increase of 118,000 jobs nationally with an aggregate payroll increase of $397 million.

Four years' experience in Oregon, where the nonreturnable ban was voted by the legislature, has not yet yielded any definitive economic statistics. But litter has been greatly reduced; polls indicate that 95 percent of the public favor the innovation, and officials from Gov. Robert Straub on down have pronounced the experiment a great success. Reports from the three-year-old Vermont experiment are comparable.

"Battle of the Bottles" Waged Nevertheless, the "battle of the bottles" has been pursued relentlessly in this year's four initiative states, with "citizen committees," largely financed by industry and unions, clashing with adherents of such organizations as Environmental Action, a Washington-based lobbying organization in the forefront of the recycling movement.

The industry groups have been outspending the environmental contingent many times over, disseminating what in many instances are alleged to be false scare stories. An Oregon "truth squad" headed by former Gov. Tom McCall has been going from state to state rebutting industry arguments.

In Maine, the anti-returnable campaign outlay has been estimated at $300,000 and in Massachusetts, upward of $700,000.

deduced a major rift in the beverage industry's solid front. The Adolph Coors Company, which fabricates its own aluminum cans, is supporting the initiative, as is promising lower production costs.

The most spectacular skirmishing has been going on in Michigan, the largest and most industrialized of the four states. There Gov. William G. Milliken, Republican, the State Highway Commission and the Department of State Police all have come out emphatically for the initiative.

They took the position in the face of protests of manufacturers, such as Peter W. Stroh, president of a big Detroit brewery, who said retooling for returnables would cost Michigan industry as much as $100 million; and George B. Watts, secretary of the Michigan American Federation of Labor-Congress of Industrial Organizations, who said the change would cost hundreds of jobs in the glass and steel industries. He publicly denounced Governor Milliken as a "look-

Crowds in Jersey Cheer President's Attack on State's New Income Tax

By JOSEPH F. SULLIVAN
Special to The New York Times

PARAMUS, N.J., Oct. 13—New Jersey's new income tax, which has just started to nibble at workers' paychecks, became President Ford's chief campaign weapon during his first visit to the state today, and he used it to attack both Governor Byrne and Jimmy Carter.

In what was a likely preview of next year's New Jersey election for Governor, Mr. Ford borrowed a familiar G.O.P. jibe when he told the crowd of several thousand people at the Garden State Plaza Shopping Center. "You've been Byrned before in New Jersey."

The President gave the line the proper reading, emphasizing the play on the Governor's name, and then he told his listeners that they could expect more taxes if they voted for Mr. Carter, whom he pictured as a "big tax spender."

Polls indicate that the income tax is the voters' chief irritant at present, and Mr. Ford tried to transfer any voter disenchantment with the Governor because of the tax to Mr. Carter. The tax references drew the biggest crowd reaction in speeches here and at a Republican reception at the Town and Campus Restaurant in Union.

"We've heard two different positions on taxes from Mr. Carter and we've heard two different positions from Governor Byrne," Mr. Ford said.

"You know how risky it is when a candidate says one thing on a campaign trail and says something else when he is in office," he said to the cheers of his listeners. "You've learned how it is when a candidate faces the voters with a smile and turns his back on them later. You've learned it with every dollar you've paid under your state income tax."

The crowds at the shopping center were not allowed in the center's parking lot, which could easily swallow the huge crowd, but were herded shoulder-to-shoulder behind barricades inside a block-wide area between shops for the benefit of cameramen recording the Presidential visit.

Mr. Ford shook hands for several minutes before he gave his 10-minute campaign speech with Senator Clifford P. Case, who is not running for re-election, standing by.

Mr. Case was the only legislator given a Presidential mention during the campaign appearance in Paramus. None of the Congressional candidates nor David Norcross, the underdog G.O.P. candidate for the Senate against the incumbent Democrat, Harrison A. Williams Jr., were placed on or near the platform. The President paused for some picture-taking with the candidates before he left for the Republican reception.

As in Paramus, police lines were set up in Union long before the President arrived and thousands of well-wishers were on hand, many of them students from nearby Kean College.

When Mr. Ford arrived, he walked along the barricades shaking hands and found after a few steps that some well-wishers did not want to let go. The President finally had to say to one man, "Please let go" and at about that time the crowd surged forward, knocking over a 50-gallon drum filled with water.

The President's trousers were splashed and he walked in water to the tops of his shoes for a few steps. The enthusiasm of the crowd was rewarded when the President climbed on the roof of his limousine and stood up to address the crowds along Green Avenue.

"I saw a sign today that said Jersey loves Jerry," Mr. Ford said. "I just want to tell you that I reciprocate—Jerry loves Jersey."

Inside the reception, Mr. Ford told about 400 Republican Party leaders and workers, principally from the Essex and Union County areas, that "I was so stimulated I jumped right on the car roof."

An aide said the President's move made Secret Service men "turn pale for a few seconds." The aide said it was the first time during the campaign that Mr. Ford had stood on the roof of his car.

Mr. Ford urged the Republican workers to remind voters that Mr. Carter "cannot be trusted" and he again emphasized that Mr. Carter "wants to increase taxes and I want to reduce or decrease taxes."

At the reception, Mr. Ford urged support for Mr. Norcross and for the incumbent Republican Congressional candidates, including Millicent H. Fenwick and Matthew J. Rinaldo.

Two Policemen Charge Bias

Last June, male members of the Nassau County Police Department filed a class action suit in United States District Court in Brooklyn charging that the promotion of 13 women officers to the rank of detective was discriminatory. The suit was subsequently dropped. Now, two police-women have filed a class action suit charging they were discriminated against on the basis of sex because they were denied promotion to the rank of detective until last May 28 although both had joined the department in 1968.

'Amicable' Police Talks in 7th Day

By JOSEPH B. TREASTER
 Officials of the Patrolman's Benevolent Association and the city yesterday went into the seventh straight day of informal talks aimed at finding a way around an impasse over working schedules and a deferred increase in wages.
 Neither party would comment on the substance of the talks, but a spokesman for the Beame administration said the discussions had remained "amicable" and added, "That's certainly not a pessimistic sign."
 At the same time, Sgt. Harold H. Melnick, the president of the Sergeants Benevolent Association, said a few technical points remained to be clarified on how some aspects of his organization's new contract would be implemented. He said, however, that he expected to present the pact to his delegates next Tuesday and that acceptance by them was likely.
Weaving Does Not Agree
 Sergeant Melnick, in an interview, reiterated his belief, shared with Mayor Beame, that a settlement between the sergeants and the city was likely to lead to influence a break in the deadlock with the patrolmen.
 The president of the P.B.A., Douglas D. Weaving, disagreed, saying, "The sergeants negotiate for the sergeants and the P.B.A. negotiates for the patrolmen." Mr. Weaving made the point as he walked at the head of a column of 500 off-duty policemen who demonstrated Tuesday night outside Yankee Stadium.
 "One thing has nothing to do with the other," he said.
 The demonstration at Yankee Stadium fell far short of expectations in size—The Police Department had put nearly 1,500 men on duty for the event and had been prepared to deal with 6,000 demonstrators.
 There were no demonstrations yesterday by members of the union, but a spokesman said the picketing was scheduled to resume this evening outside Tun's Restaurant in Queens and at the Americana Hotel in Manhattan, where Jimmy Carter, the Democratic Presidential Nominee, was to make appearances.
 Even though the demonstration at the Stadium had been smaller than expected, Anthony V. Bouza, an assistant chief, who was in command of the uniformed force there, said of the P.B.A. "They're scoring points."
 "Do you think I had a victory here today?" he asked a newsmen after the last of the demonstrators had trailed away from what had been a quiet and orderly event.
 "I don't," the chief went on.
 "Look at them," he said motioning toward a parking lot full of uniformed men who had been assigned to work overtime for the demonstration. "The city can't afford this."
 In more than two weeks of demonstrations, department officials say, the city has spent more than $750,000 in overtime pay.

In Days of Old, the Knights Were Bold—but Nowadays?

By ROBERT BYRNE

DE FERRIAN/BLACK
TISDALL/WHITE 19/176
Position after 23 RKP

Today's players evince such a clear preference for bishops over knights that one may well wonder what a knight is good for. In game after game, the theme of obtaining the two bishops crops up, while it is rare to find anyone excited about fighting with knights as weapons.

So it is only fair to give the ignored or maligned knight its due. The slowest piece on the board, it is, of course, a great drawback in the kind of open position in which the action suddenly shifts from one wing to the other.

But in the siege warfare characteristic of close positions, especially if the action takes place in the center, the knight may far outweigh any bishop. It works very efficiently around and over semiblocked pawn formations. Moreover, an advanced central knight outpost may easily be worth its weight in rooks.

In the game between Jon Tisdall and Nick De Ferrián from the third round of the 1976 United States junior invitational championship, White blithely sacrificed a pawn to rush a knight into a tremendous center outpost and scored quickly with a sharp attack.

A Waste of Precious Time

In playing 10 P-B5 rather than the older 10 P-N3, Tisdall indicated his willingness to let Black run after a bishop by 11... N-B5 and 13... NxBch for the sake of bringing his KN, with 11 N-Q2 and 12 N-B4 to bear on the black QP. De Ferrián's 10... P-KR3 (in place of 10... N-B5) was a waste of time, and he was too quick with 13... NxBch after posting his own knight well.

Against the knight's probe, 16 N-N5, De Ferrián could not have kept his pawns intact by 16... R-B3 because 17 QR-B1, P-QR3 runs into 18 NxBP!, QxN; 19 PxP, RxP; 20 P-N5!, R-Q1; 21 P-Q6 recovering the knight with an overwhelming position for White.

He hoped to justify the positionally weak 16... PxB; 17 PxB by the counter 17... P-B3, but Tisdall leaped to sink a powerful knight with 18 N/5-Q6!

After 20 Q-Q3, it might have been better to play 20... N-K2; 21 QR-K1, N-B3; 22 Q-Q5ch, K-R2, but Black

Low Diamond Play

It seemed likely to South that the diamond king was on his right, so he made the expert play of a low diamond from dummy. This was the wrong play as it turned out, but it was hard to tell. If East had held the king and played it, the declarer would have had three diamond tricks available to him.

As it was, West won the diamond jack with the king and made another key play by leading a heart. South did the best he could by allowing East to win, but Pollack now shifted back to trumps and West played the ace and another. The contract was still in the balance because the position was this:

Balanced Hands Can Present Partners With Hard Questions

By ALAN TRUSCOTT

The unknown gentleman who first offered the veracity classification of "lies, damn lies and statistics" might have been thinking about bridge statistics. The world's leading bridge statistician, a Frenchman, recently devoted a great deal of hard work to investigating a delicate point: If the partnership hands are balanced, is it better to play game in a major suit with an eight-card fit or in three no-trump?

The normal answer is that the major-suit game is usually better, but that no-trump is occasionally worth a try if the circumstances seem very favorable for no-trump. The industrious statistician examined 4,000 world championship deals and found that in 55 of them one team played game in a major while the other played three no-trump. On 23 deals, there was a swing, 16 of them in favor of the no-trump bidder and seven deals against him.

The statistician now reckoned that he had proved the advantage of playing in no-trump. All he had really proved, however, was the world's best players are clever in choosing the right moment to abandon the normal major-suit game in favor of the abnormal no-trump game.

Two Bids Questionable

The deal shown in the diagram, played at the Bergen Bridge Center, Teaneck, N. J., is an example of this choice. As it turns out, three no-trump is quickly defeated by a heart led, but four spades is quite tricky. Two of the bids made en route to four spades are questionable. North's two-club rebid suggested a more unbalanced hand, and two spades was certainly preferable.

A direct raise in a minor suit normally promises four-card support, so South was a club short when he raised three clubs. However, none of the possible alternatives was clearly superior.

One might expect South to lose a spade, a heart and a club to make four spades, but he ran into a smart defense from Steve Sion of Boston, sitting West, and Bill Pollack of New York, sitting East.

The opening lead was the spade five, putting the defense ahead immediately since the declarer could be prevented from ruffing a heart in the dummy. South won with the queen and led a club to the jack in dummy. If East had

Britain Weighs Library Royalty

By HERBERT MITGANG
Special to The New York Times

LONDON—One of the most controversial literary ideas in years—that authors should receive some payment when their books are borrowed from public libraries—comes up for debate in the House of Commons today, after passage by the House of Lords. If approved, chances are considered good for an act to be on the statute books before Parliament concludes this session at the end of next month.

The comparatively new notion known as Public Lending Right has already placed authors on a collision course with librarians, who regard the proposed law as an intrusion and a nuisance, and with some government officials, who look upon professional writing as a pleasant risk instead of as a property right.

Under the proposed law, library borrowing would continue to be free for the public. A central fund would be provided by the State Treasury, not exceeding £1 million ($1.6 million) annually to begin with, which would cover both administration under a Registrar of Public Lending Right and author payments. Libraries would make no contributions, and would be reimbursed for any additional paperwork to carry out the plan.

Corroborating Evidence

By CHRISTOPHER LEHMANN-HAUPT

ROOTS: The Saga of an American Family. By Alex Haley. 887 pages. Doubleday, $12.50.

The most remarkable passages of Alex Haley's "Roots: The Saga of an American Family" come at the very end, in the final 20 pages or so of this nearly 600-page story. It is here that we are finally convinced that the dramatic family-chronicle Mr. Haley has told is not the novel that it appears to be, but actual history. Mr. Haley describes how he visited the African village of Juffure, in Gambia, and heard from the lips of one of the village's griots (oral historians), the name of his great-great-great-grandfather, Kunta Kinte, who was captured and sold into slavery by the English in 1767, and whose name was passed down through six generations of his family, thus inspiring Mr. Haley to write this history.

And it is here that we most immediately feel the effect on an American black man of finally knowing exactly where he came from and what his roots are. Mr. Haley describes how, as he drove through Juffure after hearing the recitation of the old griot, the villagers gathered around his Land-Rover chanting: "Meester Kinte! Meester Kinte! Let me tell you something: I am a man." A sob hit me somewhere around my ankles; it came surging upward, and flinging my hands over my face, I was just bawling, as I hadn't since I was a baby. "Meester Kinte!" I just felt like I was weeping for all of history's incredible atrocities against fellow men, which seems to be mankind's greatest flaw. . . .

Considerable Authenticity

These final pages are, to say the least, extremely moving. But the question remains: Was it necessary to read the previous 580 pages in order to be so extremely moved? Or to put it another way: because the final section of "Roots" is so much more effective than what precedes it, wouldn't Mr. Haley have been wiser to have written an autobiography instead of novelized history—that is, to have put the emphasis on how he went about reconstructing his family's history rather than on the final result of that reconstruction?

Not that the reconstruction is by any means a waste of time. In fact it makes for absorbing reading—the story of Kunta Kinte and the six generations that followed him. It evokes, with considerable authenticity how the members of a typical black family survived the physical suffering and spiritual humiliation of slavery and kept alive against all odds their dignity, integrity, and African cultural heritage. The story has dramatic shape, rising steadily as it does to an irresistible climax in the third generation, when a few decades before the Civil War one

Chicken George Lea, the author's great-great-grandfather, nearly wins his family's freedom in a cockfight on which a wager of $40,000 is riding. And Mr. Haley's story inspires colossal outrage, shaping one's mind into a fist and providing it with the looming target of slavery to punch away at until one grows arm-weary with despair at history's indifference to fair play.

Still, the fact remains that it all reads like fiction, and very conventional fiction at that. It's obvious that many of the details are invented, as Mr. Haley himself concedes; and many of the inventions provoke the uncomfortable feeling that the author grabbed the first thing at hand upon reaching into the cupboard of his imagination (for instance, a thorn to prick the foot of young Kinte, to illustrate how the boy suffered on his first jungle-trek with his father, or the tactic of exercising gamecock wings, to point up Chicken George's sagacity as a cockfight trainer).

Metaphor Is Created

In other words, by writing "Roots" Mr. Haley has done something merely ordinary, whereas by laying the groundwork to write it—by tracing his heritage back to its African roots and thereby providing a concrete example to those millions of American blacks whose true names remain unknown—he has done something extraordinary. And so one wonders if there wasn't something more than ordinary that Mr. Haley could have done with this groundwork.

Of course, it is moot whether different treatment would have served Mr. Haley's material any better. Finally, one has to accept that he handled it as he felt more comfortable doing. (He explains in "Roots" that he learned to write while serving in the United States Coast Guard by dramatizing sea adventures that he gleaned from maritime records in the Coast Guard's archives; from sea adventures he went on to write biographies for the Reader's Digest and eventually got the assignment as co-author of "The Autobiography of Malcolm X.")

Indeed, who knows: Perhaps the ending of "Roots" is so powerful precisely because of what precedes it. Perhaps in writing a semification first, Mr. Haley has created a metaphor for the vague awareness felt by most American blacks that they are somehow descended from people who were abducted from Africa. And perhaps the contrast of this semification to what follows it helps to heighten the shock of discovery when Mr. Haley finally confirms his family legend. It is as if he were saying that he knew he was real but didn't really believe it until he discovered corroborating evidence. Thus he speaks not only for America's black people, but for all of us everywhere.

"BOOK OF THE YEAR"

New York Magazine

The extraordinary wave of critical acclaim for ROOTS continues. Sales records were shattered even before publication. Fourteen days later, it is unquestionably the hottest bestseller in America.

But ROOTS is more than this year's most popular book. "I put it down overcome by the power of the narrative," Robert C. Maynard wrote in his front page Washington Post Book World review. "This book is bound to have a lasting impact on American culture."

That is why ROOTS must be read now, and will become an enduring part of our heritage. Because in searching for his roots, Alex Haley has helped us discover our own.

CONNECTICUT PANEL ASKS WIDE CHANGES

Committee on Restructuring Bids State Cut 256 Agencies to 14 —Public Hearings Slated

By LAWRENCE FELLOWS
Special to The New York Times

HARTFORD, Oct. 13—A committee appointed by Gov. Ella T. Grasso to make proposals for restructuring the Connecticut government recommended today that the existing 256 agencies, boards and commissions reporting directly to the Governor be reduced to 14 for easier and more-efficient provision of government services.

The Governor's committee did not speculate on the political problems involved in wiping out so much patronage, and did not want to venture at this stage into the dollar savings that might be realized or the jobs lost.

The report was designed to evoke public discussion, according to John Filer, who is chairman of Aetna Life and Casualty, the Hartford-based insurance company, and chairman of the study committee.

With the help of the League of Women Voters, five open meetings will be scheduled in different parts of the state over the next six weeks, Mr. Filer said.

Another Report in December

Another report will be prepared in December to submit to the General Assembly at the beginning of next year, Mr. Filer said. He said that better services rather than cheaper government was the objective of the continuing study.

"It is not so much the people in government we are focusing on, although they will be affected," Mr. Filer said. "Rather, it is the people who will suffer from the lack of government help who are the principal and ultimate objects of this work."

"At stake is the public's willingness to have the government address those problems and needs that do in fact require government attention," he added. "If people believe that a government is fat, wasteful and inefficient... they will be unwilling to support the continuance or expansion of government services."

In its general tone, the report will seem familiar to some people in Connecticut. In 1971, a similar study group headed by Edwin Etherington, a former president of Wesleyan University, proposed that the government be restructured into nine major executive departments. Only bits and pieces were adopted from that study, and at least 20 new agencies have been created since.

A significant difference, Mr. Filer said, is that his unpaid committee will not disband now, but will continue to look for the best of government structures that is realistic and politically acceptable, and try to steer their proposed changes through the General Assembly.

One proposal would do away with an elective office, that of Comptroller, and move the accounting and pre-audit functions from that office to a new staff agency—the Department of Administrative Services.

It would require more than the approval of the General Assembly—a constitutional amendment would be needed. The proposal would also require a changed approach to politicking at state party conventions, as there are only six elective executive offices now, including that of Governor, and the candidates for Comptroller have for many years played a significant role in balancing the tickets.

Another political problem that Mr. Filer's committee foresees is getting members of the Assembly to abolish committees they find politically useful and relatively harmless. These committees are inexpensive and in many ways insignificant except to the people who get the appointments to them. They include the Cuban Refugee Program Committee, the State Tree Protection Examining Board, and 254 others playing more or less consequential roles, all of them responsible directly to the Governor.

"This is an incredible number," Mr. Filer said. "And it is difficult for either the Governor or the legislature to relate to this many agencies and their heads with the frequency and depth of contact necessary for management."

In addition to the Department of Administrative Services, there would be Departments of Education, Higher Education, Transportation, Labor, Commerce and Business Regulation, Public Safety, Environmental Protection, Social Services, Health, Criminal Justice, Consumer Protection and Revenue Services.

The 14th agency would be an Office of Policy and Management in the Governor's office, to improve the coordination of planning and budgeting, build better relations with local governments and keep better track of Federal policies that affect the state.

Academic Freedom Safeguarded

Higher education would be administered separately from primary and secondary education to allow provisions to be built into the department that would safeguard the academic freedom enjoyed at that level now, but would substitute a single board of trustees for 14 boards, offices and commissions of varying significance that exists in higher education in Connecticut now. But an attempt to restructure higher education on similar lines failed in the Assembly this year.

There are other instances where reorganizations suggested in this study have failed when tried one or two at a time, suggesting a measure of tough sledding ahead for Mr. Filer's Committee on the Structure of State Government.

The members, besides Mr. Filer, are James W. Fessler, professor of government at Yale; Ruth L. Sims, a director of the League of Women Voters of the United States; and James A. Wade, a Hartford attorney. They were appointed by Governor Grasso last December.

Mr. Filer said the committee would seek a wider mandate from the public and the cooperation of legislators. With 38 government units involved in finance and taxation, 29 in education, 26 in natural resources, 31 in health and 15 in public safety, the government of Connecticut is ready for some improve functional alignment, he said.

"We are basically a compassionate people but our frustration tolerance is just so high," Mr. Filer said.

The would-be Brooklyn Dodger who wound up directing the finances of Mobil Oil.

With Michael Bohannan, Director, Brooklyn Museum

When he was interviewed at Yale Law School, James Q. Riordan was asked about his Brooklyn College baseball career. Just how serious was his interest in the sport?

"Very," Riordan said.

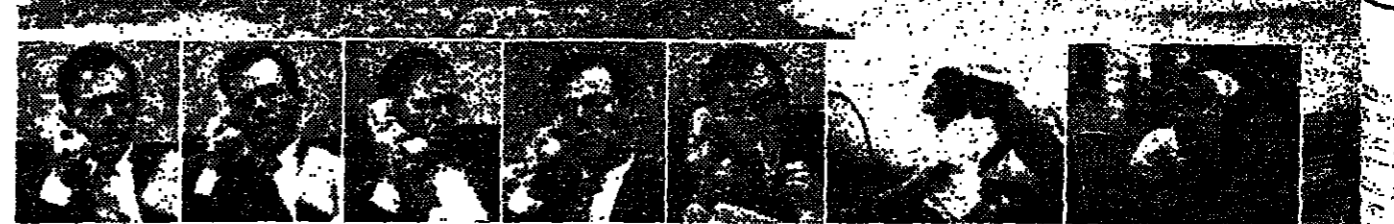

"Then," said the admissions officer, "pursue that interest, young man."

So Riordan played minor league baseball for a season and at last got a chance to talk to the great General Manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, Branch Rickey, about his prospects for a major league career.

"I hear you want to be a lawyer," Rickey said.

"Well, I think you ought to do that."

So it was back to law school, this time Columbia. After graduating in 1949, Riordan worked for two law firms and for the government before joining Mobil. Today, at 49, Riordan is Senior Vice President of Finance, and oversees everything from cash flow worldwide to acquisitions and mergers. Strong opinions about the relationship between money and oil guide his decisions.

"You have to pay for the replacement of each unit of energy that you use or the next generation won't have any fuel. We have to develop other energy sources such as coal and solar and nuclear power."

Riordan and his wife, Gloria, have four children: Harris, 21; Susan, 19; Jim, 18; and Ruth, 16. They spend summer weekends on Long Island where Riordan swims, golfs, gardens, and has developed a mean spin with a frisbee.

"I like to use my muscles playing golf or tennis, working in the garden, doing something physical so that you don't get so far away from the animal that you basically are."

But Brooklyn, where he lives with his family, is still Riordan's first love. He's Treasurer of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts & Sciences, parent institute of the Brooklyn Museum, and the Brooklyn Botanic Garden.

"If you were born in Brooklyn, you grew up in the museum, just like you grew up in Ebbets Field—but the museum is still here."

Riordan thinks that innovation, to be productive, must be rooted in discovery. That's one reason he reads Scientific American each month.

"Scientific American? It's my monthly mind-stretcher. What I like about the magazine is its clear-eyed approach. I have confidence in your authors' methodology, they're not trying to load the answers, they're not out to sell you something. Generally, they report what they can honestly say and prove."

In a society that lives by innovation, discovery is our most important product. Scientific American is the magazine of discovery, attracting a growing number of newsstand buyers and subscribers. Each month it is read by more than 1.5 million men and women who make the future happen.

Fisher Hall, Redone, Faces the Real Test

By HAROLD C. SCHONBERG

There still are workmen all over the place, and there will continue to be virtually up to the opening New York Philharmonic Pension Fund concert next Tuesday. But the new Avery Fisher Hall is substantially completed, and concertgoers in this city will have what in effect is a brand-new vision to admire or to argue about, as the case may be.

How it will sound is anybody's guess. Philharmonic officials are keeping a tight security guard on the acoustic tests, and the press is being kept away. Not until Monday, when the Philharmonic will give a concert for the workmen who have been in the hall since last May, will anybody outside the inner circle get an idea of what Dr. Cyril Harris, the acoustic consultant, has wrought.

But for some time now, guests have been escorted through the hall. Only a month ago the auditorium of Fisher Hall was filled with scaffolding, dust and equipment. All that has been removed, and it is possible to see the auditorium as it will be at the Tuesday opening.

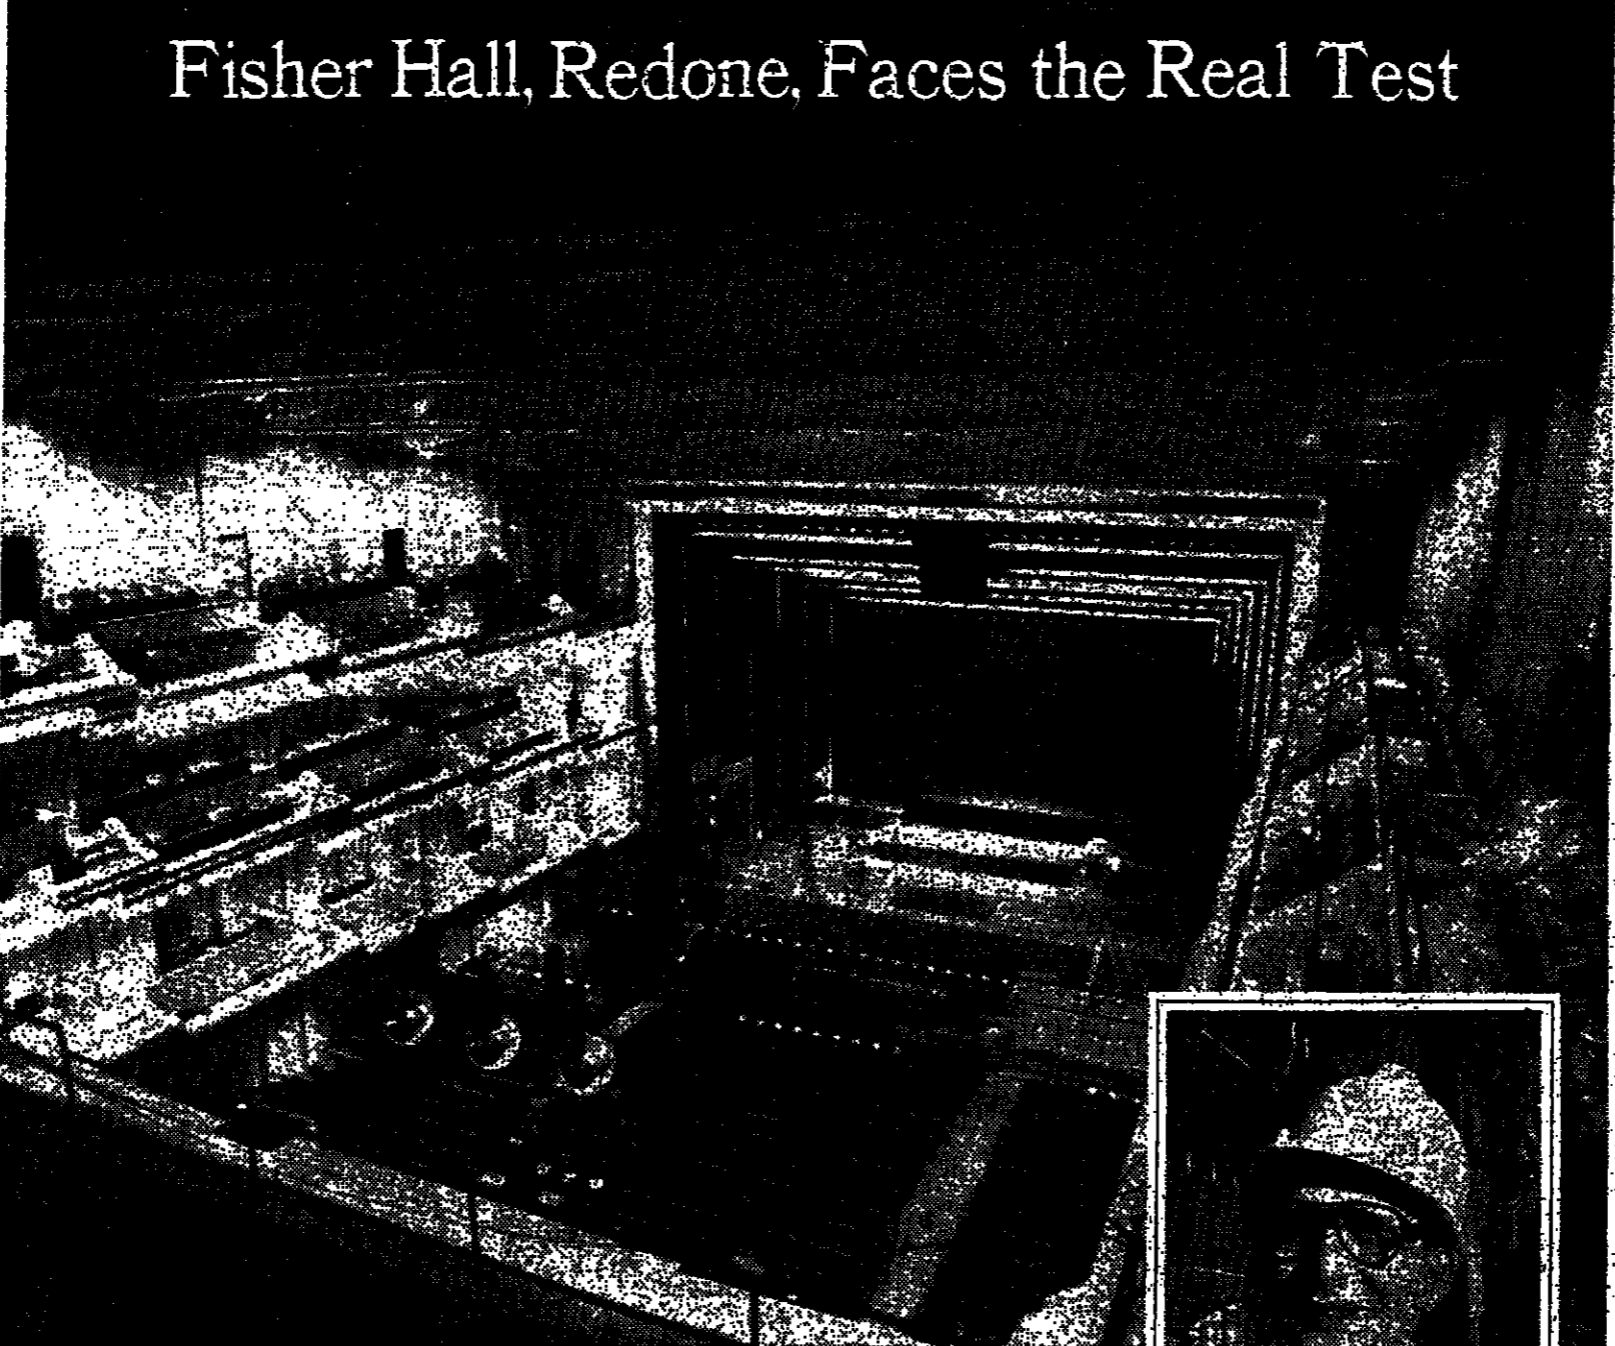

Ceiling Now Solid Plaster

It is a different hall. When the Philharmonic announced that the old auditorium was to be "gutted," it was no idle statement. Where Avery Fisher Hall used to have curved walls, it is now a rectangle. Where it had molded plywood diffusion elements, now there is solid wood up and down. Where the color scheme was a dull earth color, now it is in white and gold.

It is a solid hall. "The old ceiling," Dr. Harris says, "was so full of holes that you could hear the concert from the roof better than downstairs." The ceiling now is solid plaster arranged in an intricate design, with plane surfaces at angles to one another. These elements are integrated with the side walls, so that the motif is carried throughout the entire installation.

Thanks to the new rectangular construction, the auditorium looks smaller and more intimate, though the number of seats is almost the same—2,742 as against about 2,150. The distance from rear wall to stage is 120 feet—about the same as Symphony Hall in Boston, and the width is about 66 feet from one side balcony face to the other.

The new Avery Fisher Hall resembles Symphony Hall in other aspects. There are three trim balconies parallel to the floor in stepped-down sequences. For acoustic reasons, the surfaces, or fascia, of the balconies are convex. The stage has a depth of about 40 feet—little larger than before. A new wood floor has been built. In addition to the antique white and gold, another color is predominant. The walls of the stage are made of dark brown oak, and the brown is carried outside to Avery Fisher Hall in its last stages of reconstruction.

Dr. Cyril Harris, the acoustics consultant, said, "I have been too busy to be nervous."

the foyers, where the massive travertine pillars are now painted a chocolate brown. The downstairs areas also have a good deal of brown.

Almost everything downstairs has been changed. The restaurant has been dropped, though there still will be a bar. New ticket offices have been installed in the south foyer, facing Lincoln Center Plaza. The Broadway entrance has been retained, but patrons entering there will be diverted into the main foyer-box-office area. A good deal of the space that has been saved by the new construction has gone into badly needed office space and better facilities for the musicians.

Dr. Harris and Philip Johnson, the architect, spent many restless hours in the design stages. It was conceded that acoustics were the all-important factor, and that Mr. Johnson would be guided by acoustic necessities. But design also was important. "Johnson had to be satisfied and I had to be satisfied," says Dr. Harris. "An awful lot of designs were thrown out."

One ticklish construction problem concerned the ceiling. Dr. Harris decided to mount it on heavy springs. "That is for noise control so that no vibrations can be transmitted. It is now as airtight as insensitively can make it."

Change in Ventilation

Dr. Harris is a perfectionist, according to Carl Morse, board chairman of Morse/Diesel Inc., the company doing the remodeling. "It got to be a joke with us on the job: Whatever Cyril wants Cyril gets," said Mr. Morse. "One time one of our workmen came to me and said Cyril was kissing the extra-heavy concrete blocks that we'd had made on his orders. It turned out that he was trying to blow through the blocks to test the porosity. He wasn't quite satisfied, so we had the blocks grouted with a plaster paste to make them impervious to the passage of air."

The duct work for the entire hall was replaced because it did not meet Dr. Harris's specifications, at a cost of $750,000, Mr. Morse said. The total cost of the remodeling, Dr. Harris would not say, but informed sources put it at $8.4 million. Will it work? Dr. Harris exudes confidence. "Anyway," he says, "I have been too busy to be nervous." He says the hall will have a reverberation period of about two seconds, which is optimum for symphony halls, and that the new Fisher Hall "will have as much diffusion as any hall ever built."

It has been an expensive gamble, but a necessary one. On Tuesday the results will be official, and Philharmonic officials are looking forward to a great concert hall. Everybody is confident, and nobody thinks of failure. Nobody dares even think of failure.

Tarantula Meal Is an Attraction Of Insect Zoo At Smithsonian

By JANE E. BRODY
Special to The New York Times
WASHINGTON—At last, the earth's most abundant, and some say most successful, form of animal life has a zoo of its own. Its called the Insect Zoo, and it is housed at no less prestigious a place than the Smithsonian Institution here. Contained in one 50-by-70-foot room, the zoo, with its thousands of fluttering, creeping, crawling, hopping, swimming and burrowing inhabitants, is testament to the success of miniaturization. The Insect Zoo (a deliberate misnomer to attract the public) is really the Hall of Arthropods — animals with jointed legs, segmented bodies and external skeletons. Arthropods include insects, millipedes, centipedes, arachnids (spiders, scorpions, mites and ticks) and crustaceans (crayfish, lobsters, crabs, barnacles and sowbugs). Ranging in size from microscopic mites to nine-foot crabs, arthropods volunteers and detailed guide to help cement narrow the gap between rich and poor nations by the year 2000 was prepared by a group of economists and issued at the United Nations. After three years of study, the team compiled data showing that global resources would be sufficient to support growing populations and higher living standards without environmental harm. Limits to growth, the report said, are of physical but political and institutional inadequacies in the developing countries and faulty relations between rich world countries and developed ones. (Page 1, Columns 1-2.)

National

A wide-ranging Federal inquiry has found that 14 persons in nine states died within 48 hours after receiving swine flu inoculations since the national immunization program began less than two weeks ago, but Federal officials said their investigation had found no evidence that any of the deaths were caused by the vaccine. At the 45 vaccination centers in New York City, meanwhile, few people showed up for the shots. [1:1-2.]

The first three reported deaths of persons who had been inoculated occurred in a Pittsburgh clinic and touched off nationwide concern and suspension of the swine flu immunization program in a number of states. The director of the Allegheny County Health Department said in an interview that preliminary results of medical tests into the deaths had shown no evidence that the vaccine was responsible. [4:2-3.]

Gov. George C. Wallace quietly ordered that the United States flag be flown over the Alabama Capitol, replacing the Confederate battle flag at the top of the staff for the first time in 15 years. The Confederate flag was placed in the No. 3 position on the staff, under the state flag. The Governor's symbolic gesture angered some Alabamians. [1:1-2.]

Metropolitan

About 100 persons were killed when a large plane crashed in a main avenue in the eastern Bolivia city of Santa Cruz. The Miami-bound jet careened or more than 300 yards and struck a school. [1:4.]

X-rays of the skulls of Egyptian mummies and tests of their hair samples have enabled a team of American scientists to identify the mummy of King Tut's grandmother, who lived more than 3,300 years ago. The mummy was found in 1898, but it had lacked identification. [1:3-5.]

Roderation of Teachers to check off dues automatically. A spokesman said that the loss of the checkoff for 22 months after strikes in 1967 and 1968 cost the city union about $1 million in dues. In addition, the cost of collections was put at $750,000. [1:6.]

The North Central Bronx Hospital, caught in a two-month controversy, was ordered opened by the state in a decision by Supreme Court Justice Edward J. Greenfield. In a 19-page ruling, he said that the state's Health Commissioner had overstepped his authority in rejecting city plans for opening the new hospital. [1:4-6.]

CBS Inc. announced the dismissal of Arthur R. Taylor as president and the appointment of John D. Backe, head of the CBS publishing division, to succeed him. High-ranking executives were also stunned by an announcement by William S. Paley, chairman of CBS since 1928, who is 75, that he would step down as chief executive officer. [1:4-5.]

Business/Finance

A special task force to press criminal charges in corporate bribery cases has been formed by the Justice Department, a senior official disclosed. The Government has forced about 225 companies to acknowledge having made illegal or questionable payments in the last two years, but the cases to be pressed would be the first to involve possible prison terms. [5:3-1.]

The trustee of the bankrupt W. T. Grant Company accused the Morgan Guaranty Trust Company and 26 other leading banks for which it acted as agent of having controlled Grant's management "to serve their own interests." [5:2-3.]

The stock market's slump was checked by a technical rally. The Dow Jones industrial average rose 15.95 points to close at 948.36. Since reaching its 1976 high of 1,014.79 on Sept. 21, the average had plunged 82.44 points, or 8 percent because of the slowing economy. [5:3-6.] Credit markets were generally sluggish except for a strong showing by the Duke Power Company's $100 million offering of 30-year bonds, which will yield 8.42 percent. [5:4-3.] Commodity futures in Chicago rose their allowable limits. [6:3-6.]

Study of 3 Deaths in Pittsburgh Indicates Vaccine Was Not Cause

By LAWRENCE K. ALTMAN Special to The New York Times

'Sounder Part 2' Is Gloomy and Full of Sentimentality

PART 2 SOUNDER, directed by William Graham...

Every dog has his day, and apparently the hound-type dog that gave his name to the movie "Sounder" five years ago had his.

The original "Sounder" was a sentimental, immensely popular film about the maturing of a small black farm boy under various types of adversity.

"Part 2 Sounder" is about the same Louisiana farm family as the original. David, the boy, sets his heart on getting a school for the neighborhood.

It is a depressed kind of film, with a lot of gloominess and teeth-gritting. It is unrelentingly didactic—about the need of working hard and persevering and believing—and lets in as little life or liveliness as a McGuffey's Reader.

"One of the most visually beautiful films I've ever seen, an almost miraculous achievement in range of color and sensuous detail."
 —Jack Kroll, Newsweek

"If sin, like truth and beauty, is in the eye of the beholder, 'Story of Sin' is a delight to the eye. Eroticism, costuming, settings and photography are artistically detailed. Lovers engulfed in newly found ecstasy leave little to the imagination, and lust and murder are made equally specific in rich, red damask rooms. Mr. Borowczyk is just as careful in maintaining a fast, narrative pace. Eva is curvaceous, genuinely winning and realistic, both as the virgin introduced to love and sex amid swirling white petticoats or nude or in black corsets as the seemingly callous streetwalker."
 —A.H. Weiler, N.Y. Times

"A hothouse tale of morality filmed with appropriate Victorian delicacy and an always-smoldering suggestion of sensuality."

Mark Climbs to a 15-Month High Against the Dollar

LONDON, Oct. 13 (AP)—The West German mark rose to a 15-month high against the dollar today as the French franc declined to a 32-month low.

Dealers said West Germany's Bundesbank, the central bank, probably bought some dollars to moderate the mark's rise while the Bank of France apparently sold dollars and marks to support the franc.

Nevertheless, the dollar declined against the mark to 2.43, the lowest level since July 10, 1975, and down from 2.4375 yesterday. The dollar rose to 5.0137 French francs, the highest level since Feb. 8, 1974, from 4.9332 yesterday.

Dealers said the divergence between the two currencies was partly accounted for by a continuing shift of funds from Paris to Frankfurt on expectations that West Germany would continue to outperform France in trade and in restraining inflation.

However, most analysts believe Bonn authorities cannot delay for too much longer an increase in interest rates, which will bring the mark even higher.

Consequently, the mark strengthened against virtually all European currencies.

Once again, other participants in the joint European currency float moved down toward their bottom trading margin against the mark.

Gold closed at $114.875 an ounce in London and $114.84 in Zurich, up 25 cents. The market was reported quiet.

The pound tended to move with the dollar, ending the day with a small gain at $1.6547 compared with $1.6528 yesterday. However, the pound was down against the mark and some of the other currencies in the joint float, so that its trade-weighted depreciation widened further to 45.1 percent below 1971 parities for 10 currencies, compared with 45.0 percent yesterday.

As usual, the Swiss franc moved with the mark. The dollar ended at 2.4415 Swiss francs, down from 2.4490.

The dollar edged slightly higher against the lira to 841.75 from 840, but dealers said there wasn't much significance in the move since the market in lire was extremely thin.

The dollar rose for the 10th consecutive business day against the yen, ending at 290.33, up from 289.32.

Dealers said Japanese oil companies had steadily been buying dollars to pay for oil imports.

Zinc Producers Reverse Recent Price Increases After Decline in London

By JAMES J. NAGLE

Zinc producers, many of whom raised prices earlier this year, are now reducing them.

The reductions were attributed to a lack of sustained consumer-buying interest, a sharp drop in zinc prices on the London Metals Exchange and the fact that gains in the economy expected when the increases were announced in August have not materialized, according to industry spokesmen.

The St. Joe Minerals Corporation, the largest in the field, announced yesterday, effective at once, a reduction of zinc metal prices by 3 cents across the board, and a cut in the price for zinc oxide of 2 cents across the board. The metal prices ranged from 40 cents to 40.5 cents a pound while those for zinc oxide ranged from 42 cents to 45 cents.

Other companies announcing cuts in zinc prices yesterday were Asarco Inc., which reduced its price by 2 cents a pound, and the National Zinc Company, a subsidiary of the Engelhard Minerals and Chemical Corporation, which cut its prices by 2 cents to 2.5 cents a pound, also effective immediately.

National Zinc's refinery has been closed since early August because of a strike, but it is purchasing zinc in other markets and continuing to ship to its customers.

Gulf and Western Industries Inc., which through its subsidiary, the New Jersey Zinc Company, also is an important supplier in the zinc industry, said it had no comment at this time.

The round of price reductions of zinc had been set off on Tuesday, when Lead and Zinc Inc., a lead producer, had been made on Aug. 12, are 37 cents a pound for its zinc and 37.5 cents for its lead.

In other pricing actions announced by Philip Morris Inc. and Amstar Specialty Metals, a subsidiary of Amstar Inc., following the lead of other companies, Philip Morris raised the price of its cigarettes from 11.5 cents per thousand, effective Sept. 1, to 11.75 cents per thousand, effective Oct. 1.

Amstar Specialty Metals raised the price of its metallic molybdenum and steel mill products about 11 percent. Tungsten prices increased about 25 percent.

Eggs being injected with swine flu virus, one step in the production of the vaccine against the disease. Recent deaths following immunization with the vaccine have again raised the question of liability.

Washington & Business: Vaccine
Puts Focus on Liability Problem

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—The deaths of two elderly women and one man in Pittsburgh early this week put an exclamation mark on a business problem that has afflicted the national swine-flu immunization program since its beginning.

This is the problem of liability in damage suits. Early reports gave no evidence of any cause-and-effect link between the vaccine and the deaths of the three elderly persons, all of whom had suffered from chronic heart disease. But the deaths all occurred on the same day—Monday—only hours after the three had received vaccine at a single clinic.

The surprising cluster of deaths sent shock waves through the whole vaccination effort causing several states to suspend their programs pending investigation in Pennsylvania.

F.T.C. Filing Suit Today to Block
Arco From Acquiring Anaconda

By STEVEN RATNER
The Federal Trade Commission will file suit in a Federal court today to block the proposed merger of the Atlantic Richfield Company and the Anaconda Company, the agency and the two companies announced yesterday.

Arco said that "we do not believe the merger would violate any law and we intend to vigorously defend any lawsuit. However, we have not yet seen any court papers."

On July 2, after acquiring 27 percent of Anaconda's stock in the spring, Atlantic Richfield, the nation's 15th largest industrial company and a major petroleum concern, agreed to buy the remainder of Anaconda's stock.

DUKE POWER BONDS OFFERED AT 8.42%

Analysts' Expectations Exceeded by Strong Showing of Issue in a Desultory Market

A strong showing by the Duke Power Company's $100 million offering of 30-year bonds was the highlight of a desultory day in the bond market, leaders said yesterday.

Underwriters priced the 8 1/2 percent Duke Power bonds to yield 8.42 percent—the year's lowest yield for a new single-A-rated utility offering. The issue's strength exceeded the expectations of bond analysts, who generally had predicted a yield as low as 8.5 percent.

Duke Power's borrowing cost worked out to 8.43 percent. A syndicate led by the First Boston Corporation won the offering with a bid of 98.82 percent of face value. By late afternoon, about one-third of the $100 million had been sold, First Boston said.

Corporate bonds were generally off 1/4 to 1/2 percentage points in a dull session, traders said. Trading in Treasury issues was also slow, and most issues closed down somewhat. The low average yield of 8.126 percent at yesterday's auction of 52-week bills was anticipated, dealers in Governmentals said.

Fed Executes Repurchase Orders

The Federal Reserve twice executed overnight repurchase orders of Treasury securities. Analysts read these maneuvers as more assurance of the Federal Reserve's intent to hold the rate on overnight loans among banks to 5 or 5 1/2 percent. The rate was about 5 1/2 percent when the Fed moved to dampen it, analysts said.

Interest rates on the sale of $109.9 million of tax-exempt urban-renewal notes by the Department of Housing and Urban Development fell to their lowest level since May 1972, 48 issues averaging up to a year in maturity, were sold at an average cost of 2.53 percent at this month's sale, down from last month's 2.958 percent.

Tandy Feels Shares Are Undervalued

By ROBERT METZ

The management of the Tandy Corporation is so sure that the company's shares are undervalued that it is going into debt to buy them up again.

Yesterday's announcement that Tandy will offer 10 percent debentures at a rate of $40 for each common share exchanged marked the second time in just over two years that Tandy has moved to reduce the equity.

In July 1974, the company offered 10 percent debentures for common shares at a rate, adjusted for a 2-for-1 stock split, and a spinoff in 1975, that amounted to $7 to $8 a share.

But though there was, therefore, a precedent for yesterday's move, Wall Street was taken by surprise. Tandy shares did not trade yesterday. They closed at 32 1/2 Tuesday and there were indications yesterday that the stock would have traded at between 38 and 39.

Terry McEvoy, who analyzed Tandy for H. C. Wainwright & Company, said the move was "in line" with the philosophy of its president and chairman, Charles D. Tandy.

"Mr. Tandy believes such exchanges constitute a good use of corporate debt if people don't want the stock at what he regards as fair value," Mr. McEvoy said. He thinks the stock is worth more.

Mr. Tandy's frustration is perhaps understandable in terms of the past. As recently as 1972, the shares traded at a price-earnings ratio of 35. At recent prices, the stock was trading at 9 times the most recently reported 12-month earnings.

Tandy formerly was involved in handcrafts, but in October 1975 the company spun off TandyCrafts, its hobby retailer, and Tandy Brands, its finished leather goods manufacturing subsidiary. Now its chief asset is Radio Shack, a growing chain of consumer electronics stores involving more than 5,000 dealers.

The debentures involved in the new exchange offer are callable after two years at $105 per $100 face value and mature in 15 years. The offer is subject to a minimum of 500,000 shares being turned in. If more than the 1.5 million shares sought are tendered, the company may elect to accept some or all.

of the excess or reduce on a pro rata basis.

In the exchange, said it would take up 10 shares but receive only 10 shares. There now are 18 outstanding.

Analysts said that it related to rapid growth, no dividend, but stock value at a rate of better than 4 a year. They are by shares averaging 2,200 per share.

Mr. Tandy is said to be a growth-oriented company, and a dividend would be a "self-trade" and it would not be ready to trade. While citizens' band radio is critical to their success, the Federal Communications Commission's decision to allow 40-channel equipment by January has caused some sales of equipment during the important period.

Tandy is said to have an inventory of 25 million about one-third of which is based on recent sales. He also is offering substantial on 25-channel models in 1976.

However, some analysts believe that the current 25-channel equipment is that involved in the hobby channel's are, for instance, an Air-Track who favor who for a long time has great distribution can that despite the citizens' band company was doing that in the fiscal year end be expected Tandy to share up from $3.55 in 1975.

On the other hand, some say that Tandy has stores at a rapid rate. Now long the field can boom. Sooner or later, the rate of growth for Tandy the field must slow.

Past-Due Loans of Banks Decline To Lowest Level in 18 Months

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (UPI)—The number of past-due loans held by the nation's 4,700 banks has dropped to the lowest level in a year and a half, the acting Comptroller of the Currency said today.

Acting Comptroller Robert Bloom said that as of June 30, 1976, the proportion of past-due loans to total loans outstanding was 4.8 percent. This represents the lowest ratio since January 1975, he said. Last March, past-due loans represented 5.2 percent of all loans outstanding.

Loans are considered past-due if payment is more than 30 days late for installment paper and more than five days late for single-payment loans.

Mr. Bloom attributed the sharp drop in past-due loans to "a trend toward continued improvement in the economy, coupled with sounder credit extension and better collection efforts by the banks."

How Sheraton found the key to a more efficient expense-account system:

Bancardchecks!

Not only Sheraton Corporation is sold on this cost-cutting way of handling the travel expenses of their employees. Other users of our Bancardchecks system now include such corporate leaders as Raytheon, Anaconda, Bell & Howell, J. C. Penney, and the Foxboro Company.

Why this ever-growing popularity? Because Bancardchecks can save a company—including yours—up to 30% a year over any other expense-account system.

The main reason for this cost-cutting is that your account is charged only after Bancardchecks are actually cashed. This is what makes our system so different from others. Obviously, the amount of funds you need to have tied up in travel expenses will be greatly reduced.

Another advantage: your company's travelers don't have to cope with getting a cash advance at the last minute... or carrying more cash than they feel comfortable with. They simply write out a Bancardcheck when ever needed... for the specific amount needed.

Your company gets a duplicate record of each transaction. And each month we can send you a detailed report showing the expenditures for each of your participating employees.

With all these advantages, you can see why Bancardchecks are making other travel-expense systems obsolete. Like to know more? Give Phil Manning a call. You can reach him in Boston at (617) 434-6463 or in New York City at OX5-2370, ext. 6463. Or write him at Box 1974, Boston, MA 02110.

The dictionary defines it as "assurance, faith, a trusting relationship." Our agents define it for Mass Mutual. Men and women whose business relationships have been cemented by bonds stronger than dollars...

If 6.05% current return is not enough—how about making it tax-free. And adding 4 extra features.

The $20,000,000 Municipal Investment Trust Fund, Sixth Intermediate Term Series (A Unit Investment Trust), has just been announced.

In addition to its attractive return, the Fund pays you income that is free from Federal income taxes, in the opinion of counsel. And it may be exempt from state and local taxes as well.

- 1. Monthly Checks. You receive a monthly check for your interest in the mail. 2. Easy and Convenient. You may participate in the Fund with moderate amounts of approximately $1,000 per unit. There are no coupons or records to keep. You get a single registered certificate for all your units. The Trustee holds the bonds themselves. 3. Professional Selection. The trust holds a balanced portfolio of municipal bonds selected by bond specialists. You have strength through diversification.

cent from the year ago quarter, but up 2 percent in the 9 months.

In the latest quarter, Citicorp's provision for possible loan losses was $75 million, while actual losses were $72.6 million. In the 1975 quarter the provision was $72.1 million and the actual write-offs amounted to $81.2 million.

In the first nine months of 1976 the company's provision for loan losses totaled $225 million up from $212 million in 1975 and actual writeoffs increased to $207.7 million from $180.2 a year ago.

J. P. Morgan & Company, parent of the Morgan Guaranty Trust Company of New York, the nation's fifth-largest bank, reported operating earnings in the latest quarter rose 1.3 percent to $50.1 million, or $1.24 a share, compared with $49.5 million, or $1.28, in the 1975 quarter.

Results for 9 Months In the nine months, Morgan showed a small 1.3 percent decline in operating earnings, but net income, after securities transactions, rose 4.2 percent.

The banking concern, which specializes in corporate banking, said that results so far this year, compared with the 1975 period, reflect a "modest decline in net interest earnings, sharp improvement in bond department trading profits and trust and agency income, and a smaller provision for possible loan losses."

The report said that nonaccrual of interest or accrual at rates lower than original rates, mainly on real estate related loans had a negative impact of approximately $11.5 million on the nine-month net income, compared with an $8.2 million reduction in net income from these factors in 1975.

In the third quarter, Morgan's provision for possible loan losses was $15.5 million, compared with $19.5 million in this year's second quarter and $20 million in last year's third quarter. Actual charge-offs in the third quarter this year totaled $11.4 million, compared with $14.8 million in the second quarter of 1976 and $38.3 million in the third quarter of 1975 when $35 million of a W. T. Grant loan was written off.

Washington & Business: Vaccine Its Focus on Liability Problem

The law made the Federal Government the initial target of all damage suits arising from the program. The Government could later sue a manufacturer if evidence showed that the claimed injury had been caused by negligence. Although the bill passed by voice vote in the Senate and by a 250-163 margin in the House, there was some criticism. One Congressman said the measure would be opening the public treasury to liability that could grow to mind-boggling size. As some critics had predicted, the solution of the swine-flu liability issue was soon used as a precedent for dealing with another problem. Early last month, Lederle Laboratories division of the American Cyanamid Company balked at signing a contract with the Federal Government for polio vaccine. The company insisted that health departments administering the vaccine be responsible for having satisfactory guardians sign statements indicating they knew the risks of the product their child was to receive.

The national swine-flu immunization program is only beginning, but its effects are already reverberating in unexpected ways. Some public-health experts believe it will cause permanent and probably important changes in the way public immunization programs are conducted and supported in the United States. HAROLD M. SCHMECK JR.

HUTTON GROUP'S EARNINGS ROSE 13% IN 3D QUARTER

The E. F. Hutton Group Inc., parent company of E. F. Hutton & Company, the brokerage firm, reported yesterday earnings increases of 13 percent for the third quarter. The company's revenues increased 24 percent in the period. The record September quarter profits amounted to $4.5 million, or 74 cents a share, compared with $4 million, or 68 cents a share in the year-ago period. Revenues for this period were up to $75.3 million from $60.7 million. For the nine-month period, net income also set a record of $18.5 million, a 2 percent increase, compared with $18.5 million in the first nine months of 1975. Soviet Buys 100,000 More Tons Of Hard Winter Wheat From U.S.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (Reuters)—The Soviet Union bought a further 100,000 tons of United States hard winter wheat, the Agriculture Department announced today. The wheat is scheduled for delivery during the current marketing year that ends next May 31, and is counted against the first year of the United States-Soviet long-term grain agreement.

The Agriculture Department said today's sale brings the total bought by the Soviet Union under the first year of the grain agreement to 6.65 million tons of American grain, comprising 4.0 million tons of corn and 2.65 million tons of wheat.

Farm Commodity Futures Climb Limits on Estimate of Reduced Crops

CHICAGO, Oct. 13 (AP)—The Agriculture Department lowered its 1976 corn and soybean production estimates by a small amount and farm commodity futures on the Chicago Board of Trade advanced allowable limits today. Soybean prices rose 20 cents a bushel, soybean meal $10 a ton, soybean 100 points, or 1 cent a pound, and oats futures 6 cents a pound—all limits. Wheat futures closed with a gain of 1 1/2 cents while corn was up more than 8 cents. Cattle broilers had a gain of about one-third of a cent a pound in fairly active trading.

The Agriculture Department figures, based on Oct. 1 conditions, were released after yesterday's close. The corn crop was estimated at 5.86 billion bushels and the soybean crop at 1.25 billion bushels. The corn figure was 27 million bushels lower than the Sept. 1 estimate and the soybean figure was down 24 million bushels. There was no cause for concern about a shortage, it was said.

Wheat, corn and oats traded all session long. The wheat estimate was a record and the corn second highest on record, but the demand for these futures was very strong. The trade apparently had expected export demand to continue strong and, possibly, that the end-of-the-year production figures would be still lower. At the close, soybeans were up 20 cents a bushel, with the November delivery at $6.45 1/2; wheat was 10 1/2 to 14 1/2 cents higher, December, $3.09 1/2; corn was 7 1/2 to 8 1/4 cents higher, December, $2.74 1/2 and oats were 5 1/2 to 6 cents higher, December, $1.66 1/2.

Soybeans, meal and oil opened higher at the allowable limits and remained locked in those positions. Oats hit the trading limit, fluctuated for a time, then closed at the limit permitted for a gain. Minutes after the session began, there were orders for the purchase of some 20 million bushels, but there were no sellers. The figure rose to 25 million at the close.

Changes at CBS Come as Sales And Earnings Are at New Highs

By JOHN H. ALLAN
The announcement of William S. Paley's intention to step down as chief executive of CBS Inc. next April comes at a time when the company has never been more profitable. Yesterday it reported record sales and earnings for the third quarter and first nine months of 1976.

Broadcast Sales Rise
"Sales rose for all four of the company's operating groups during the third quarter," Mr. Paley said, "with improved earnings for the quarter reflecting principally the outstanding results of the CBS-Broadcast Group and particularly the CBS Television Network."

Subway Trains Kill Two Men, Both Apparent Suicide Victims
Two men were killed by subway trains—apparent suicides—in Queens and Manhattan yesterday. Neither victim was identified.

Summary
Showers are likely across New England today, while fair skies should cover the rest of the East. It will be cool from the northern half of the Eastern Seaboard to the lake region and upper Ohio Valley, and from the western half of Texas into Arizona.

Forecast
National Weather Service (As of 11 P.M.)
METROPOLITAN NEW YORK: Partly cloudy today, high in the mid-40's, with moderate to heavy showers in the afternoon.

Abroad
Paris: Partly cloudy, high in the mid-50's, with moderate to heavy showers in the afternoon.
London: Partly cloudy, high in the mid-50's, with moderate to heavy showers in the afternoon.

TAYLOR IS DISMISSED AS CBS PRESIDENT and he just didn't want to leave it in the care of Arthur Taylor. It's as simple and as complicated as that," a CBS director who wished not to be identified said yesterday.

Successor to Stanton
Mr. Taylor came to CBS in July of 1972 with a reputation as a financial wunderkind, having been selected by the board after an extensive search for a worthy successor to Dr. Frank Stanton, who had been the CBS president since the late 1940's and was about to retire on reaching the age of 65.

Ratings Disappointing
Even in a year in which CBS-TV's ratings have been the most disappointing in its history, the network's sales and earnings are at record levels.

When William S. Paley assumed the presidency of the Columbia Broadcasting System on Sept. 25, 1928, just three days before his 27th birthday, the network consisted of 16 straggling radio stations, all east of the Mississippi and north of the Mason-Dixon line.

Successful Marketer John David Backe

By ALBIN KREBS
"My style of management," said the new president of CBS Inc. yesterday, "is formal from the standpoint of business procedure—pretty much according to the book. On the other hand, I tend to be very informal in my relations with people. I like to deal with the individuals charged with carrying out corporate duties from what I consider a humanistic approach."

Born in Albany on July 5, Backe is the son of John Enrydy Backe. His father, who died in 1938, was a prominent lawyer and politician.

Major in Market
Mr. Backe graduated from University of Oxford, Ohio, having majored in marketing. He immediately joined the Air Force, serving in the Pacific during World War II.

Life Devoted to
Like other men in big time in industry, John Backe is devoted very much to his family. In 1954, he married Katherine Backe, and they have three children: a son and two daughters.

As for Mr. Taylor's favorable showing on the business side, a source close to CBS observed, "He inherited a very successful company."

Mr. Backe, the new president, was not until now a conspicuous figure in the CBS hierarchy. Since 1973, he has headed the CBS publishing division, which includes Holt, Rinehart & Winston, publisher of general and educational books; the Popular Library, publisher of paperback books and 25 magazines, among which are Field and Stream, Road and Track and World Tennis.

Mr. Paley was born Sept. 28, 1901, in Chicago. His father, Samuel, and an uncle, Jacob Paley, immigrants from Russia, had established the prosperous Congress Cigar Company. A branch factory in Philadelphia later became the concern's main plant, and Samuel Paley moved his family to that city.

Mr. Paley's first marriage, to Dorothy Hart Hearst, ended in divorce. In 1947, he married Barbara Cushing Mortimer. They have a son, William Cushing, and a daughter, Kate.

ASTRONAUTS MAY RENEW USABILITY OF SPACE LAB

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (UPI)—The Federal space agency is considering sending astronauts in 1980 up to the abandoned Skylab space station in earth orbit. Their mission would be to rocket it into a higher orbit, for possible later use.

high, but since then has dropped to within 255 miles of Earth under the drag of the tenuous upper fringes of atmosphere. Mr. Savage said in an interview that the possible mission was being considered for the shuttle's sixth and final planned space-test flight, now scheduled for March, 1980.

Pennsylvania Flood Aid Ordered HARRISBURG, Oct. 13 (AP) — Gov. Milton J. Shapp signed today a proclamation of extreme emergency for flooded portions of south central, central and northeastern Pennsylvania. All the areas were hit by heavy rains last weekend.

How to save the middle-aged marriage.

Although many couples seek sex therapy, sex is not necessarily the crucial issue in middle-aged marriages, according to Dr. Leon and Shirley Zussman, writing in the November issue of FORUM magazine. It is usually the relationship itself that falters and it must be healed.
